

Feeling In Ethiopia Is That Italy Will Begin War Within Two Weeks

Selassie Refuses Italian Legation Permission to Bring Colonial Italian Troops into the Country as a Guard.

ITALY TO MOBILIZE

Mussolini Orders Fascist Troops All Over Nation To Mobilize for Display; Millions Involved.

Addis Ababa, Sept. 10 (AP).—Emperor Haile Selassie today refused the Italian legation permission to bring colonial Italian troops into the country as a guard.

(Previously, the Italian legation has asked permission to bring in a detachment of colonial soldiers as a special legation guard, just as the British have brought in colonial troops from India assigned to duty in the legation compound. The British troops have erected bomb-proof shelters.)

While the League of Nations is struggling at Geneva for peace, predictions were being made here today, even in official quarters, that Italy would begin war within two weeks when the present rainy season ends.

One minister, who would not permit himself to be quoted, said he expected war in 15 days.

Profound pessimism exists among the foreign diplomats.

It is known that the Italian legation had packed up, ready to leave the moment Premier Mussolini gave the signal.

The British had completed plans for the concentration of their nationals in places of safety in the event of hostilities breaking out.

Following the example of the Germans and the British, other legations—but not the American—were building bomb proof shelters. Official employees of the radio station on the outskirts of Addis Ababa were also completing subterranean shelters. The State Department had not yet allotted funds for such protection of Americans here, interested persons said.

Italian Minister Luigi Vinet-Giugni protested to the government that Ethiopian authorities in areas where the Italians were closing their consulates had declined to allow the Italians to take along their Italian-protected Ethiopian servants on the ground that they had not received orders from the capital to permit such natives to depart. Most of these natives were Eritreans.

The emperor's refusal today was a request for permission to bring in a detachment of troops as a special legation guard.

Fascist Mobilization

Rome, Sept. 10 (AP).—Premier Mussolini today ordered a nationwide one-day mobilization of all the Fascist forces of Italy. The mobilization will test the nation's ability to spring to arms at a moment's notice.

The order involves 2,000,000 members of the Fascist party and 650,000 young Fascists between 15 and 21. They will be accompanied by 4,000,000 Fascist boys.

The order set no date of the mobilization, but announced that it would be proclaimed by sirens and church bells.

Fascists living abroad are required to telegraph the secretary of the party.

Mobilizations will be held in Italy's colonies.

Il Duce today reviewed several thousand young Fascists, members of the Avanguardisti, and told them:

"You are more than a hope. You are a certainty. To whom is the right of battle reserved?"

"To us," the youth answered in a tremendous shout.

Adolf Hitler's assurance of collaboration with Italy on a basis of "reciprocal comprehension of the vital necessities of the two peoples" was accepted in informed circles today to mean support of Italy's expansionist plans in return for Italian sympathy with Germany's colonial ambitions.

It was made clear that Italy would welcome Germany's sympathy for its East African venture—Sympathy denied it by Great Britain—with the publication here of the interchange of speeches between Italy's Ambassador to Berlin, Bernardo D. Altavilla, and Hitler in the German capital Sunday.

Although no official statement was available today, it was recalled that Italy had for a long time been a champion of treaty readjustment to allow Germany a place in the sun.

With the general feeling prevailing that the present discussions at Geneva on the Italo-Ethiopian problem are futile, it was believed possible that Italy might again begin to voice her views in regard to Germany's international right as a rebuttal for what she considers a unilateral discussion of a purely colonial question.

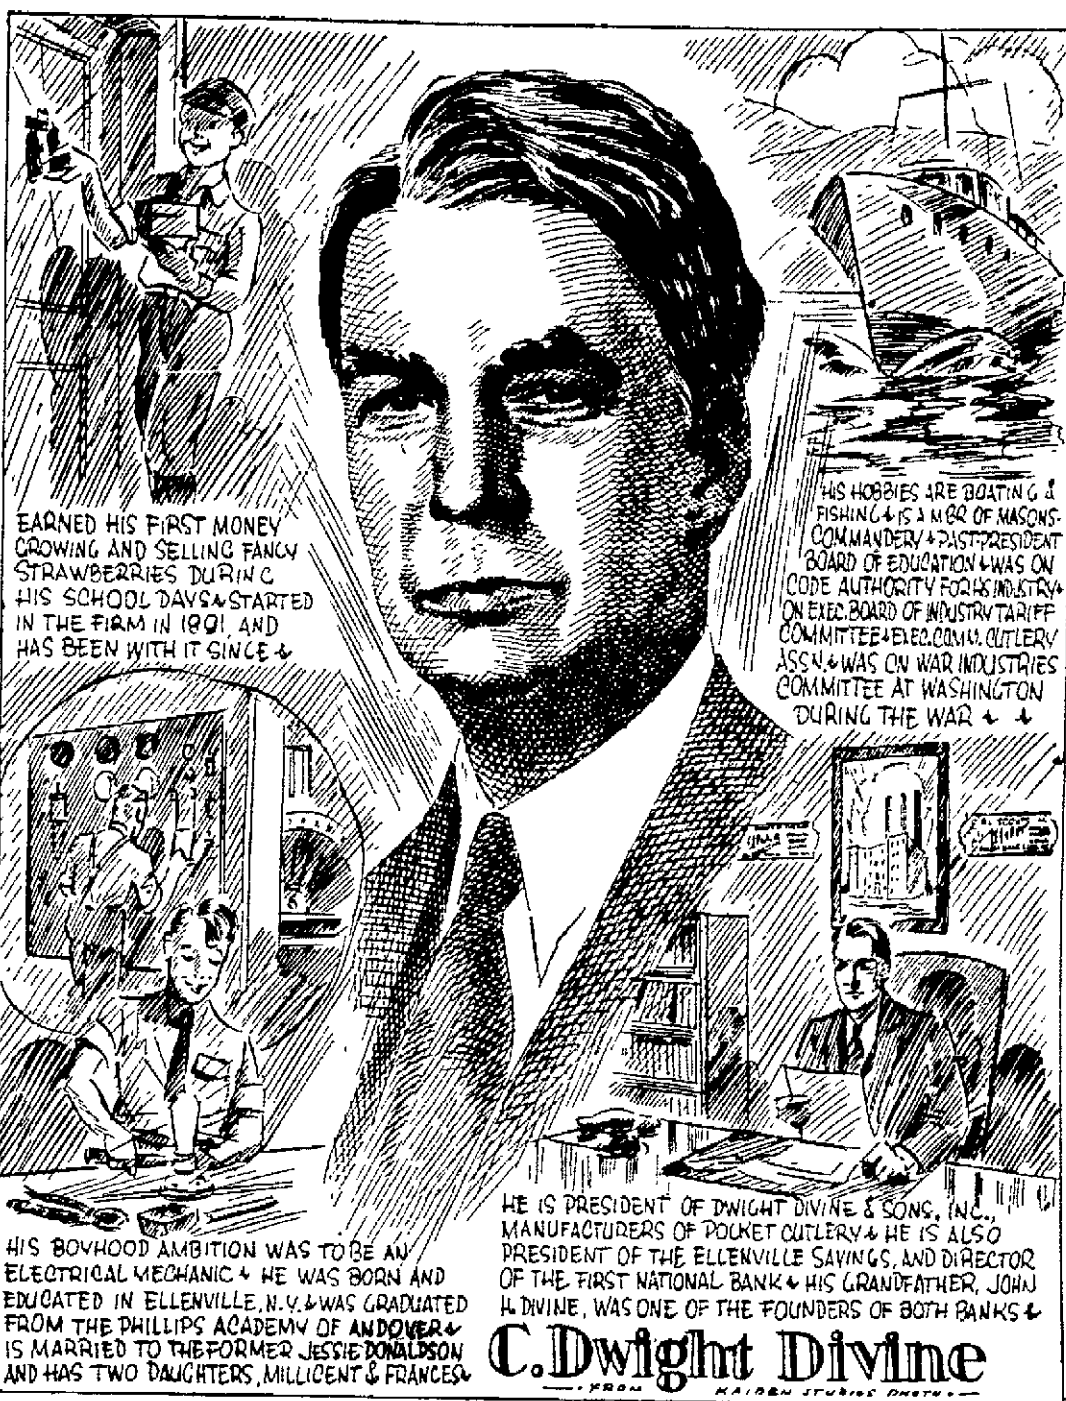

Body to Be Returned

Erle, Pa., Sept. 10 (AP).—The body of Richard Wallace Schabacker, 26, who police said killed himself in New Rochelle, N. Y., will be returned to his parents' home in Erle for burial.

Authorities returned a verdict of suicide in the death of Schabacker, a financial editor of Forbes magazine. His wife told them he had been depressed. His father, W. J. Schabacker, is president of the Union Storage Company in Erle.

Separate Ashes From All Burnable Material

Householders are urged by the Board of Public Works to cooperate with the city by keeping ashes in separate containers from those used for burnable materials and tin cans, the latter to be disposed of in the city incinerator while the ashes will be deposited on the city dumps. By the dumping of only ashes sanitary conditions in the vicinity of the dumps will be greatly improved. Ashes cannot be burned in the incinerator, and that is why they should be kept in separate containers.

The board at its meeting last night decided not only to request the cooperation of the citizens of the city in carrying out the above regulations, but also to ask the Common Council to adopt an ordinance requiring the segregation of ashes from burnable materials and tin cans.

With the ashes in one container and the burnable material in another two collections will be made by the street department on the same day but in different trucks.

Sneak Thief Visited Three Offices in the Opera House Building

Yesterday during the noon hour a sneak thief paid a visit to three offices in the Opera House Building on Fair street, but got little for his pains. He entered the office of the Boy Scouts where he obtained about 60 cents in change. Then he entered the office of the Equitable Life Assurance Company, across the hall, where he broke open a desk and into the filing cabinets but as far as known his labor was wasted. These two offices are on the third floor.

From there the thief entered the law offices of Judge Charles de la Vergne on the floor below where a small sum of money and cigarettes were taken.

In the Boy Scout office all that was missed was the contents of an envelope containing 60 cents which was in the typewriter desk of Miss Eva Phook. The empty envelope was later found thrown on the floor behind a desk.

This is the second time that offices in that building have been visited by a sneak thief.

American Legion Speech.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP).—Sims pointed today to a speech by President Roosevelt before the American Legion convention at St. Louis late this month. Reserving decision on the route of his trip to the Pacific coast, Mr. Roosevelt went ahead with routine business today.

Callers included Secretary Roger and Robert W. Bingham, ambassador to Great Britain. Neither announced what he had up for discussion. Undoubtedly the involved European-Ethiopian situation will receive attention in the Bingham conference, but there is no prospect of Mr. Roosevelt authorizing any intervention except with moral support for success of the peace negotiations.

U.S. Senator Huey Long Dies After 31-Hour Fight For Life

No Cases Ready For Trial Monday In County Court

County Judge John C. Tracy of Columbia county, presiding over the September trial term of Ulster county court in the absence of County Judge Frederick G. Traver, who suffered a broken arm one day last week in a fall near his home, convened the term Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Of the 32 cases on the civil calendar there were none ready for trial when the judge attempted to make up a trial calendar for Tuesday. Two cases were set down for trial Wednesday at 10 o'clock to which time court was adjourned.

All grand and trial jurors answered when the roll was called and Henry Winchell of Olive was named foreman of the grand jury with Jacob Furmansky of Kingston acting foreman. But two of the grand jurors asked to be excused. They were Henry Thomas of Wawarsing and Frank J. LeFevre of New Paltz. Both were excused by the court. After a brief charge by the court the grand jurors entered upon their deliberation.

On the call of the trial jurors to present excuses there was the usual demand for relief from service and Judge Tracy excused 11 of the panel of 36. Those excused were Carl Andrews of Marlborough; Maurice Dayton, Marlborough; Richard Donahue, Plattekill; Burton Fenney, Olive; George Fowler, Marlborough; George W. Moore, Kingston; Gershom Mount, Lloyd; John Nicklin, Marlborough; Max L. Reben, Kingston; Charles Thielman, Rosendale and Alpheus Van Aken of Denning.

An action brought by Harry I. Kniffen against Arthur J. Harder, an action for money damages, was announced as settled. Peter H. Harp for plaintiff and N. LeVan Haver for defendant.

The two cases which were set down for trial Wednesday are:

No. 5, John Millicent against Antonio Frisa, Grace Frisa and Angelina Frisa, an action to recover on contract. Lawrence Lavine for plaintiff and A. D. and A. W. Lent for defendant.

No. 7, Charles Kelly against Isidore Miller and Arnold Greenspan, co-partners, doing business under the firm name and style of Ellenville Auto Sales, an appeal from Justice's court. John A. Bonomi for plaintiff and Joseph Kooperman for defendant.

An action in fraud, Wilbur L. Martin and Elsie M. Teed, as administrators of the estate of Nathan G. Martin, deceased, against Samuel Halpern, was set down for trial Wednesday, September 18, at 10 o'clock. Earl H. Houghtaling for plaintiff and Fowler & Connelly for defendant.

Court then adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Moscow Hails Decision.

Moscow, Sept. 10 (AP).—A New York police court's acquittal of seaman accused of tearing a swastika flag from its mast on the German liner, Bremen, was welcomed today by Pravda, Communist party organ, as an anti-Fascist demonstration.

The paper saw in the decision a sign of "increasing hatred of Fascism among the masses in the United States." "This was a verdict against the Fascist regime in Germany," the paper said. "It shows that American courts are impressed by the growth of the anti-Fascist movement in the United States. American workers are becoming more and more active against the Fascist menace which is personified in the terrorist dictatorship of the third German empire."

DIES FIGHTING

HUEY P. LONG

Capital Wondering Whether His Machine Will Die With Senator

Washington, Sept. 10 (AP).—Did the powerful state political machine and the national prestige he built up die with Huey P. Long today?

The Capital's political analysts pondered that question today as they studied the career of the assassinated Louisiana Senator for signs to indicate whether or not his power was built solely around his own personality.

His career in the national eye could be divided into two parts.

The first establishment of a powerful state political "dictatorship," the second a broadened and looser-knit organization which formed the basis for his pretensions to presidential nomination.

It now remains to be seen whether the place of the shrewd, quick-witted Long can be filled—whether there is a "Crown Prince" somewhere in the ranks of his lieutenants.

Although the Democratic high command repeatedly claimed it did not fear Long's political power, it kept a close eye on his activities. He expressed complete confidence in his ability to swing Louisiana in a presidential election. He also claimed several other states in the south.

Were he able to bear out these claims at the polls, the result would have been embarrassing to the administration, which has been at odds with him for many months.

Some idea of the widespread influence Long had gained during his years in politics is evidenced in the messages that poured in following the shooting. The Railroad Employees' National Pension Association, whose legislation he aided, sent sympathy. Milo Reno, leader in the National Farmers Holiday Association, termed the shooting a "Calamity." In many other National organizations he had taken interest, including his own "Share The Wealth" organization.

Senator Ellison D. Smith, veteran South Carolina Democrat, saw in Long's death complete collapse of his movement, which he said was carried along solely by Long's extraordinary traits.

Smith said that in his 27 years in the Senate "I've seen nobody there comparable with Long, and I don't mean comparable solely in buoyancy and exhibitionism."

"Huey Long was undoubtedly a genius," said Smith, "make no mistake about that. He had a mind that was extraordinary in both power and quickness."

Whether his "crown prince" could invade Arkansas as did Long for a six-day speaking campaign to elect Senator Hattie P. Caraway remains to be seen. And on the Senate floor, can his organization find a man capable of the rough-and-tumble debating skirmishes in which he was addicted with Majority Leader Charles McNary?

His colleagues in the Senate, however, always let Long do his talking.

"I WANT TO LIVE"

Fighting Desperately for Life, Long Told Close Friend of His Desire To Live.

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press)

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 10.—United States Senator Huey P. Long, known the world over as the dictator of his native Louisiana, died today of a wound inflicted by an assassin.

Physicians battled for 31 hours to save the political chieftain's life, they performed one operation, five blood transfusions and administered artificial oxygen to no avail. Death came at 4:06 a. m., central standard time.

The widow, who married him 23 years ago, was led dry-eyed from Our Lady of the Lake Hospital. She had been at the bedside in constant vigil since Sunday night.

A "gunshot wound in the abdomen" was officially given as the cause of the senator's death by Dr. E. L. Sanderson, who said there were "not necessarily" any complications.

Dr. G. S. Long, a brother of the senator, was quoted as saying, however, that the bullet which entered the right side, puncturing the colon in two places, also penetrated the kidney. The senator was 42 years old.

The gunshot wound was inflicted by Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr., kinsman of a long political enemy, in the corridor of the Louisiana state capitol at 9:20 p. m., Sunday night.

Even before his death, there were demands for a full investigation of the fatal shooting. In Washington, Representative Fenerty (R-Pa.) declared:

"The congressional committee which is about to investigate Senator Long's activities in Louisiana, might also investigate who it was who instigated his attempted murder."

The senator had just stepped from the house chamber after pushing toward completion a number of special session acts aimed at the federal administration, and toward consolidating his already almost unbelievable personal control of the state's affairs.

Assassin Killed On Spot.

Dr. Weiss, a 30-year-old eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, pressed a gun into the senator's stomach and fired. His arm was deflected before he could fire a second shot and Long's body guardsmen, state highway policemen, killed him on the spot with a fusillade of nearly sixty bullets. Dr. Weiss was buried yesterday.

The lieutenants of the Louisiana dictator were stunned momentarily and grief-stricken by Long's death, but were believed ready to attempt to carry on the powerful regime he established.

On the other hand, Long's political opponents were expected to make a strong bid against this effort and to try to gain control themselves.

Senator Long became delirious at midnight last night, and shortly later lost consciousness. Earl J. Christenberry, his secretary, said he exclaimed:

"Where are my children?"

His children, Roy, Russell and Paul, were rushed to the side but too late for the senator to recognize them.

The secretary said there were last wishes expressed in the senator's delirious state. He said he requested the family and was granted it.

Mr. J. D. Duncanson, a police officer and member of the senator's staff, said he was not present when the senator died, but he was present when the senator was taken to the hospital.

Events Around The Empire State

Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Five hundred relief workers returned to work today at New York city's Welfare Department Camp La Guardia after a promise from Joseph A. Mannix, camp director, that their demands for improvement in the quantity and quality of food would be met. The decision to return to work was reached at a protest mass meeting of the workers yesterday.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—John C. Charleson and Chester Dugger, both of Ottawa, Ont., awaited fair weather today in order to resume their airplane trip to Fairhaven, Vt. The men, enroute from Roosevelt Field, New York, made a forced landing in a field near Greenwich because of low visibility. The plane was not damaged.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Health officials sought today to stem a threatened outbreak of typhoid fever at the Onondaga Indian Reservation as three cases of the disease were reported. Dr. Philip G. Raffo, district state health officer, advised immunization of all persons on the reservation, located south of Syracuse, and 60 persons were vaccinated yesterday with anti-typhoid serum.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—An increase of $106,110 over July in the cost of building plans submitted in August to the New York State Department of Labor was reported today by Elmer F. Andrews, state industrial commissioner. In all 111 plans were submitted during August, or nine less than the number presented in July, but the August construction cost aggregated $898,520 as compared with $792,419 for July.

Westchester county led the counties of the state in cost of construction planned, with nearly one-half of the total, or $354,900. Nassau county with $86,470 was second.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Plans were completed today for New York state's three-day celebration of 50 years of conservation.

The high spot on the program is dedication of the million dollar highway up Whiteface Mountain by President Roosevelt on Saturday. In 1930, when governor of New York, Mr. Roosevelt signed the bill authorizing construction of the road high in the Adirondacks as a memorial to the state's war dead.

The celebration opens Thursday morning with a meeting of conservationists and closes Saturday with a pageant depicting the progress of conservation work in the state.

Pity The Postmen!

Their Lot Unhappy, Too.
On Account Of Garb

London (AP)—It looks as though London's postmen never will be satisfied with their uniforms.

Some time ago the shape of the hat, which was rather like an inverted coal-scuttle, was altered to that of an ordinary chauffeur's cap. The uniform also was revised and cut to a different pattern.

The latest complaint, made at a meeting of the National association of postmen, is that the material used in the new uniforms absorbs water and dust. In the words of one of the speakers, "In the old days the postman looked smart, if peculiar. Now he looks peculiar, and not smart!"

An application is being made to the post office department for an improvement in the quality and pattern of the uniform.

National Anthem Copy

Treasured Above Money

Philadelphia.—W. Ward Beam still refuses to part with his treasured first-edition of "The Star-Spangled Banner," only two other copies of which are in existence.

Recently he was asked to sell the copy at his own price to Oliver Strunk, chief of the music division of the Library of Congress. He refused.

Beam's grandfather left him a copy of the edition 53 years ago, but he did not realize its value until 1918. Other copies are in the Library of Congress and the Library of the Maryland Historical society, Baltimore.

CHARGED WITH 10 SLAYINGS

Anthony Cugino, known to the Philadelphia underworld as Tony Stinger, is shown handcuffed to a chair in New York police headquarters after his arrest terminated a three-year hunt. He was linked to 10 killings, including the murders of two young women, by authorities. He later hanged himself in his cell. (Associated Press Photo)

Dates Set for TB Clinics Here

In order further to promote the early diagnosis of tuberculosis, the local health officers have requested Katherine Murphy, Ulster county public health nurse, to complete arrangements for consultation clinics in the following places:

Monday, September 23, Saugerties, firehouse.

Tuesday, September 24, Saugerties, fire house.

Wednesday, September 25, Highland, Ganz Memorial Building.

Thursday, September 26, Kingston, Knights of Columbus Hall.

Friday, September 27, Kingston, Knights of Columbus Hall.

The clinic hours will be from 1 to 4 p. m. local time.

The State Department of Health has assured the health officers that they will supply two examining physicians and X-ray equipment. These clinics are of inestimable value to the community, and it is hoped that those who have symptoms referable to the chest will make application through their family physicians for special examination.

Field workers of the Conservation Department's Biological Survey are giving attention to various aspects of streams of the Susquehanna river system which suffered through flood conditions earlier in the summer.

Spence and matter may not be identical, as Einstein suggests, but any discrepancy must know they amount to the same thing, and all things come out even.

Two Injured in Auto Crash This Morning

Two men from Camp High Mount at Brodhead are in the Benedictine Hospital as the result of an automobile accident near Samsonville this morning at 2 o'clock.

The men are Rudy Lorenze, 35, and George Rasmussen, 50, both of whom were doing as well as could be expected at noon, according to reports at the hospital. They were badly shaken and bruised. Dr. John F. Larkin is their physician.

James Gordon of Brown Station picked the men up after their car left the road and hit a tree, and took them to the Benedictine. He notified the sheriff's office of the accident and an investigation is being conducted.

ADMISSION TO FEDERATION FLOWER SHOW WEDNESDAY

All is now in readiness for the flower show and fall festival to be given by the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs on Wednesday afternoon and evening at the Municipal Auditorium. The flower show will be formally opened at 2 o'clock by Mrs. Almeron Smith, president of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. James Roosevelt of Hyde Park, mother of President Roosevelt, and Mrs. Fred P. Luther, president of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs.

In spite of publicity in press and on posters, many telephone calls are being received by Federation members asking about the admission if one desires to attend the card party, or the flower show or both.

There is one ticket for admission to the flower show. There is another ticket for each person playing at the card party. So, there will be an admission for the flower show and for the card party, each separate. The public is invited to attend either or both.

The card party will be in play from 2 to 5 o'clock. The flower show and fall festival will be open in the evening as well as in the afternoon.

Books For Children.

Bolton Landing, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—The proper method of selecting books for children and ways and means of interesting youngsters in reading claimed the attention of 750 librarians from New York and bordering states meeting here today for the annual regional library conference. The conference, sponsored by the New York Library Association in cooperation with similar groups in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont, will continue through Saturday.

Will Represent Kingston.

The Charles Beauty Shop, 305 Wall street, has been chosen to create costume fashions at the fourth annual American beauty and styles convention. The convention will be held at the Hotel Astor, New York, September 16, 17, 18. Fifty cities will be represented at the gathering.

DEED

CRANTZ—September 10, 1935. Frederick Crantz, husband of the late Margaret Dunn and loving father of Mary Crantz, Mrs. Joseph McSpirt and Frederick, Richard and John.

Funeral Thursday, September 12, 1935, from his late home, Hurley, New York, at 8:30 a. m. and from St. Joseph's Church at 9:00 o'clock, where a Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Relatives and friends are invited. Interment in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

ATTENTION MEMBERS OF THE HOLY NAME SOCIETY OF ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.

All members of the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Church are requested to meet at St. Joseph's School Hall, Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock from where they will proceed in a body to the home of the late Frederick Crantz, Hurley, for recitation of the Rosary.

EDMUND M. BURKE, Spiritual Director.

THOMAS—At Kingston, New York, Sunday, September 8, 1935. Fannie R. Thomas, wife of the late Charles M. Thomas of Kingston.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad and loving memory of Milton O. Auchmoody, who passed away September 10th, 1934. The rolling stream of life rolls on. But still the vacant chair. Recalls the love, the voice, the smile Of the one who once sat there. Gone but not forgotten. (Signed)

SORROWING WIFE.

Local Death Record

Frederick Crantz, husband of the late Margaret Dunn Crantz, died at his home in Hurley on September 10. He is survived by two daughters, Mary Crantz and Mrs. Joseph McSpirt, and three sons, Frederick, Richard and John. Funeral services will be held Thursday, September 12, from his home at 8:30 a. m. and from St. Joseph's Church at 9:30 a. m., where a Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Fannie Brink Reeves Thomas, wife of the late Charles M. Thomas, died at the Orthmann Sanitarium on Sunday, September 8, in her 91st year. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Gussie Riskey of Woodstock, one granddaughter, Mrs. Howard A. Harcourt of Zena, one grandson, Harold R. Cooper of Hurley and two stepsons, Arthur E. and Herbert E. Thomas of Kingston. Funeral services will be held at the Funeral Home of V. N. Lasher in Woodstock on Wednesday, September 11, at 2:30 p. m. Interment will be in Woodstock.

The funeral of Edward A. McSpirt, who was killed by an O. & W. train on the Babcock Farm crossing on Saturday, was held this morning at 9 o'clock from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Herman Hendrickson, 323 Hurley avenue, and thence to St. Joseph's Church where a high Mass of requiem was offered by the Rev. Edmund Burke. The responses to the Mass were sung by the children's choir and at the conclusion of the Mass they sang "Miserere." There were many beautiful floral tributes and a large number of Mass cards. The bearers were Joseph McSpirt, George McSpirt, Patrick Scully, William Foley, Richard Dunn and Thomas McSpirt. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery where Father Burke pronounced the final absolution. Last night the members of St. Joseph's Holy Name Society and Father Burke called at the home and recited the Rosary.

New Paltz, Sept. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Webb Kniffen accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Forrest O. Miller attended the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Wilhelmina DuBois Van Vliet, wife of Albert W. Van Vliet, at Amsterdam, N. Y., Saturday at 3:30 p. m. Mrs. Van Vliet was born in Kingston, November 24, 1868, the daughter of Henry J. DuBois and Susan Rowe DuBois, she lived in Kingston a number of years after her marriage, and has resided in Amsterdam for a number of years. Beside her husband she is survived by two daughters, Miss Mildred Van Vliet and Miss Kathryn Van Vliet, one son, Albert Van Vliet, Jr., a stepdaughter, Mrs. John Abeling and six grandchildren, Edwin, Ruth, Wesley, Donald, Elleen, and Francis J. H. Abeling, all of Amsterdam, also several nieces and nephews. Mr. and Mrs. Kniffen and daughter, Elaine, also Mrs. Kniffen's father, George M. Van Vliet of Newburgh and her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Hargraves of Kingston, who also attended the funeral were present at the burial which took place in Montrose cemetery Kingston Sunday, September 8 at 2 p. m. A number of other relatives and friends were present at the burial and the many beautiful floral tributes helped to speak of the high esteem in which Mrs. Van Vliet was held by all who knew her. The Rev. Mr. Knapp, a former pastor of Mrs. Van Vliet of the Baptist Church assisted by the present pastor of the church took charge of the home services and the Rev. Mr. Cole of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church Kingston officiated at the burial.

Olympian Club

The Olympian Club has opened its 1935-36 season with a meeting held yesterday at the summer camp of Miss Hays at Leggs Mills. This year this club will make a study of "Italy." Meeting in the late afternoon, the club members greatly enjoyed a supper with Miss Hays after which the regular meeting was held. There were three very interesting papers given. Miss Schutt had the first paper on "The Beauty Location and Geographic Features of Italy." Miss Cordes' paper was on "The Formation of Italy" and the closing paper on "The Mythology of Italy," was given by Mrs. Murphy. The next meeting will be with Miss Wachmeyer.

Bellacico-Lazarone

Highland, Sept. 10.—The marriage of Miss Anna Lazarone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Lazarone, of Grand street, to Frank Bellacico of Poughkeepsie, took place at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in St. Augustine's Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Charles Rizzo. The bride wore white satin with veil and carried white roses. The attendants were the bride's sister, Margaret Lazarone, who wore blue chiffon with pink accessories and carried pink roses. The bridegroom was attended by Joseph Rubano. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Luella Ose during the ceremony. Miss Ose and her sister, Mrs. Peter Maroldt, sang "Ave Marie."

Russell-Drury

Katherine Drury of Beacon became the bride of Kenneth LeRoy Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Russell of 37 May street, Poughkeepsie, Saturday night. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage of the Dutch Reformed church, Ellenville, by the Rev. Percy C. Van Dyke, minister. Mrs. Henry Miller of Ellenville and J. Leslie Shurter, of the same village, were the attendants. After the ceremony, the couple spent the week-end at Wayside Inn, Ellenville. They will make their home at 37 May street, Poughkeepsie.

The bride has been employed as a nurse at the Veterans' Administration Facility, Castle Point, and Mr. Russell is employed by the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation. It is his second marriage, the former Mrs. Laura Marshall Russell having divorced him in Reno, Nev., two weeks ago.

Prepares Official Report. Albany, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman prepared today an official report for secretary of state Hull on the remarks of Magistrate Brodsky of New York in freeing five prisoners arrested after the Nazi flag was torn from the liner Bremen. Secretary Hull requested the report after Ambassador Hans Luther of Germany protested remarks attributed to the magistrate.

Governor Lehman received the secretary's request at his home last night and said he would prepare the report today when he returned to Albany. Yesterday Mr. Lehman visited President Roosevelt at Hyde Park and discussed the chief executive's contemplated visit to Lake Placid to participate in dedication of the new memorial highway on Whiteface mountain.

Fire At Brickyard. Sunday the fire department responded to a call for aid at the Brigham brickyard at East Kingston where the roof of one of the kiln sheds had caught fire while a kiln of brick was being fired. When the fire department reached the brickyard, however, it was to find that the employees had the fire under control. The damage was confined to the roof boards of the shed.

SENATORS ABOARD

One of the latest efforts of Senator Robert H. LaFollette of Wisconsin may look, to his colleagues, a little like treason against the Senate. He is trying to prevent Senators from representing the United States government abroad, or representing the Senate itself, or giving any impression that they are doing so. He wants Senators when touring in other countries to conduct themselves merely as individual citizens.
This is a difficult reform to accomplish. Irreverent newspapermen at Washington have a saying that "a Senator sits next to God." Our Senators have often given that impression abroad. Foreign statesmen and journalists are all the more likely to take their visits and utterances seriously because the Senate has so much to do with controlling the foreign policy of this country.

The unfortunate thing about it is that foreigners too often exaggerate this function, and touring Senators encourage them in it. The Senate, has, constitutionally, a vote on foreign-policy measures, but the Constitution gives the President the initiative and direction of foreign policy, subject only to senatorial review. George Washington and his immediate successors were strict and jealous in asserting this right, seldom or never consulting Senators until foreign negotiations were completed. That may have been leaning over backward. But the Senate latterly has gone pretty far in stretching its "approval and consent."

HAPPY LANDING

When Roscoe Turner was forced out of the Thompson Trophy Race by trouble in the engine of his fast golden bullet, a wall of disappointment and sympathy arose from the thousands of spectators at the National Air Races. On the next-to-the-last lap, Turner's plane was far in the lead, seven miles ahead of the next racer. He appeared to be the sure winner. Suddenly something blew up, dense smoke poured from his motor, and he zoomed high up into the air, out of the racing course, in order to make a safe dead-stick landing.

"Tough luck!" consoling people said to him as the weary but smiling man was brought up to the announcer's platform. But Roscoe Turner, knowing the possibilities of his mishap and perhaps, recalling Douglas Davis who lost his life in last year's race when his plane crashed, grinned and said: "What do you mean tough? When you can come down on the ground and walk away, that's good luck. I'm lucky as hell." It isn't always a simple matter to distinguish between tough luck and good luck, but a racing flyer who lives to fly another race certainly has something to be thankful for.

FUG RIVALRY

Pugilism has gone respectable, along with pony and dog races, and their prosperity waxes with business recovery. It was somewhat of a shock, though, to find Henry Ford credited with offering $300,000 in cash and guarantee to bring the Louis-Ber fight to Detroit. Even so, it went to New York, the bottom pool of people, wealth and sporting blood. We are evidently destined to have million-dollar prize fights again, as in Tex Rickard's palmy days, or better. Or worse.
If you happen to feel that way about it, The particular era of civilization we are heading for is evidently destined to be liberal-minded and liberal-minded.

We even have the old racial rivalry in sport again, on a bigger scale than ever, with black and white bopen culture. There are no more Jack Johnsons for personality, but Joe Louis has a calm intelligence and a pit-bull technique that Johnson lacked, and there are colored Negroes distinguishing themselves in almost every field of sport. There, and in music, the race prejudice line grows thinner.

CLEAN CHIMNEYS

One of the nation's largest newspapers is starting a department to be called "Friend of the Coal User."
It is for the benefit of householders, flat owners, and industrial plants.
A daily column will discuss economical firing, proper insulation and general heating problems. Readers' Inquiries about home furnace problems will be answered in the column.

It will be surprising if this service does not find immediate popularity.
One of the many inefficiencies of the industrial era has been the improper use of coal. Far too much valuable material has gone up industrial and domestic chimneys, blackening the sky, damaging buildings and vegetation and impairing human health.
There have been movements in recent years in many communities aimed directly at smoke elimination through efficient coal consumption.
They have made considerable progress, but much more remains to be done. The individual householder has not realized his responsibility to the public or his opportunity to reduce fuel bills by proper firing of his own furnace.

HOW TO DRINK

Anyone who thinks the stewards and caterers of this country are not actuated by high moral purpose hasn't read about their St. Louis convention. They have resolved to teach the American people intelligent drinking. If they fail, they say, we may get prohibition again.

Opinions differ on this subject.
Some will say intelligent drinking is drinking water, with an occasional cup of tea or coffee. Or maybe ginger ale. Others, more liberal, will approve beer within reasonable limits.

telligent drinking than what is. At the top of dumb-drinking list we might put cocktails poured into an empty stomach an hour or two before dinner.

That Body of Yours

CUTTING DOWN ON SALT

During the hot weather it has been found that so much water goes out of the body because of the perspiration that a little table salt should be taken with every drink of water. In many foundries or other places where the heat is extreme little tablets of salt are provided which is a convenient method of taking enough salt into the system.
Salt will hold seventy times its weight of water in the system and water is needed to keep the body processes in good working condition.

However there are times when too much water in the tissues is really a hindrance to the proper working of the body processes. For instance, in inflamed conditions of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat, such as occur in the ordinary head colds or in inflammation of the sinuses adjoining the nose it has been found that cutting down on the amount of salt eaten or avoiding salt in the food entirely lessens the degree of inflammation.

Dr. S. Markes, Berlin, tried to find a method to find out to what extent a salt-free diet influenced inflammation. His method was to learn the proportion of the sugar content of the bladder and of the blood. Thus the ratio or proportions were recorded before the salt intake was reduced and then during the time the salt intake was reduced and then again when the diet contained the usual or normal amount of salt.

The test was made on thirty patients and it was found that the inflammation was reduced during the time the salt intake was reduced, and that when more salt was again taken the inflammation became more severe.

It is worth much to us then to know that when there is inflammation of any kind cutting down on salt reduces the degree or amount of inflammation. This means that in cooking food and after it is cooked less salt than usual should be used to lessen the symptoms of inflammation.

However when there is no inflammation salt can and should be used freely as it has so many important uses in the body.

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN SIMS —

SYNOPSIS: Emily has run away from Edwin Barnes on their wedding night, and after surviving a narrow break-down with the help of Dr. Warden, gets a job in Birmingham and, aided by her friend Charlotte, makes good. But her marriage with Edwin is seriously shaken, and she is forced to return to him. Emily does not realize that now, at last, she must endure Edwin and forget David Carroll.

Chapter 24

NEW HOME

EMILY came to the hospital twice a day at first, and stayed an hour each time; then gradually her visits lengthened. Two weeks later she had Edwin moved to her own home, to the room that had been hers. His happiness was almost too great to bear.

She wrote to Charlotte as soon as the day was cast, very briefly and casually, because she didn't dare let herself go. But Charlotte understood, and answered the letter at once.

Emily, darling:
The cards do seem to be stacked against you, and you're probably doing the only thing possible. The only thing for you, that is, I'm not sure it would be for myself, or for anyone else. But then I can't imagine myself with any man eating out of his heart for me!
On one thing, though, I shall never let you rest. Don't let it get you matrimony, I mean—domes-ticity. Don't let your mind atrophy (because you have got a mind, Emily, and a darn good one). Remember that the world isn't bordered by a white picket fence.
I'm shipping your stuff and enclosing your pay check. Frame the check and put it in a prominent place. Let it be your ensign of battle. And come on.

I love you a great deal, infant.

Charlotte

The letter filled her with an unbearable yearning for Charlotte, for the heartening influence of Charlotte, and the keenness of her mind that was as stimulating as an electric vibrator. But she questioned the advice it contained.

The little house was sweet: a New England cottage of white clapboard, with a white picket fence,
a flagstone walk and big fat box-woods at the door. There was to be a garden at the back; so far Edwin had gotten no farther than a pond with gold and silver fish.

He hadn't offered it for sale after all, it had been built for Emily, and it seemed incredible that Emily wouldn't one day live in it with him.
Now his faith had been justified,
and he moved in a rosy haze.

Emily worked frantically, because she had learned in Birmingham that if you worked very hard you were usually too tired to think after you went to bed.

She couldn't furnish the house and plant her garden at the same time, and while her heart was with the garden, there was very little that could be done with it until fall, so she concentrated upon immediate necessities, such as chairs and tables and rugs.

Frances dropped in often "to offer suggestions," secure in the conviction that her wider experience and maturer taste were indispensable to the furnishings of Emily's home. She dropped in this morning.
"I notice in the paper that Karnall is having a marvelous sale of Orientals," she announced.

EMILY was hanging curtains. She adjusted the folds of a drape and stepped back to consider the effect.
"Is he?"

"Yes," Frances cocked her bird-like head. "The gathens are a little thick under your right hand. I thought we might go down tomorrow and see them."

Emily continued to arrange the drapery. It was a sunny bluish, with little Valentine bouquets on an apple-green ground.

"But I'm not interested in Orientals, darling. In the first place I couldn't afford them, and in the second they don't go with a New England cottage."

"But you won't always live in a cottage, and Orientals last a lifetime. Besides, your father and I wanted to help you get them."

Emily smiled at her. "Bless you both!" She couldn't tell her mother that the frosty elegance of the Felton home was just what she wanted to avoid.

"I'll get the cheaper ones now,
and by the time they're worn out, perhaps I'll be ready for the other ones. Give me a rain-check on them."

"What are you planning to have?"
Frances's tone implied that whatever it was, it was probably impractical.

"Plain trape for the big ones, and a few small hooked ones where they'll do the most good. Aunt Mandy's making me some braided ones for the bedrooms."

"Aunt Mandy?"

"Yes, I was over there one day years ago for the laundry and she was working on the chumage rug."

PHOENICIA

Phoenicia, Sept. 9.—Edith Mae Peck, two-year-old daughter of Charles Peck, is recovering from bad burns suffered last week when she clipped a small pan of hot water over herself. After receiving treatment at Dr. Quinn's office she was taken to the Benedictine Hospital where she is staying rapidly.

Shirley Bell, Mary McGrath and John Conway are the new pupils attending high school this year.

Mrs. Charles Peck has stated in Kingston so as to be with her little daughter, who is in Benedictine Hospital.

Mrs. Robert, the operator from New Jersey, has completed his work at the Phoenicia station and has returned home.

In the sixteenth century, Santa was an important seaport and the chief commercial city of Iowa.

I never saw. I made up my mind then that if I ever had a house she'd do me some. She's tickled to death over doing 'em."

Frances came as near smiling as it is possible for a perfect lady to come. "I hoped you'd have Brownie do your house instead of picking up things helterskelter as you're doing."

Emily twinkled wickedly at her.
"Do you know why I didn't? Because whenever you go into one of his houses someone always trills. 'Oh,
I know Brownie did this; it looks exactly like him!' I don't want my house to look like—like Emily Barnes."

She stumbled over the last word.
Her mother shrugged delicately, thereby disclaiming all responsibility for the very probable gasheries of her daughter's completed home.

Emily came down from her perch to survey the finished drapery.

The door-knocker sounded and Emily sighed as she went to answer
it. There ought to be a law, she thought rebelliously, against morning callers.

The caller was her mother-in-law, and Emily's heart sank. Mrs. Barnes would never approve of the new draperies; they didn't look "serviceable" enough. But she smiled dully.

"Come in. You're just in time to pass judgment."

MRS. BARNES looked gratified.
She was a plump, rather dowdy little woman who had "let herself go" considerably more than Frances Felton had, and prided herself upon it.

In fact, Lucy Barnes prided herself upon a great many things. Upon the fact, for example, that Mr.
Barnes was her lord and master instead of her companion; that he told her what to believe, and paid all the household accounts because "women had no head for figures"; that she had completely forgiven Emily for having behaved so disgracefully towards Edwin; that she had her clothes made at home because the materials in ready-made dresses were so shoddy nowadays.

"In time to pass judgment on what?" she asked brightly.

"The living-room draperies," Emily led the way to the room.

Mrs. Barnes, having greeted Frances with excessive cordiality, stood back to observe the apple-green chintzes. "Won't they fade?"

"No," Emily assured her. "They're sunfast."

Mrs. Barnes looked disappointed.
Her own draperies were dark red,
and had been in use, with the exception of the summer months, for twelve years. In June they were taken down and cleaned, and in September they were put back. They were very durable curtains.

"They're very bright and cheerful," she conceded.

"They're very well suited to this type of house, I think," Frances stated.

Emily wanted to laugh. Whatever misgivings Frances might have about her daughter's taste would never be communicated to an outsider. Frances also prided herself.

Mrs. Barnes sat down in the frail antique chair. "Don't let me stop you; I can only say a minute."

"I was through anyhow. I'm glad of an excuse to stop."

Frances rose. "I must send William for your father, so I'd better go." She considered offering to drop Mrs. Barnes at home and decided that it would save too much of speeding the parting guest.

Mrs. Barnes didn't believe in chauf-eurs, and during business hours, Mrs. Barnes walked. "If you and Edwin haven't any plans," she added,
"I hope you'll come to dinner tonight."

Emily sighed with relief. Her maid had been out for two days and she was rapidly coming to the conclusion that her domestic accomplishments weren't meant to include cooking.

"We'll be charmed. In addition to the company the idea of eating food
I haven't prepared is entrancing."

When Frances had gone Lucy Barnes said resignedly: "I'd dropped by to ask you to supper with us tonight, but of course we can't offer the indecentments that Frances can."

Emily wanted very badly to kick over a table, and was suddenly ashamed of herself. "I'm so sorry I didn't know! And if you think you haven't any indecentments, just extend another invitation and see how quickly we accept it!"

She took her mother-in-law's plump arm. "Come and see the chest of drawers I had Turner do over for me."

Politics at Random

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

It is a mistake to suppose, as some people profess to do, that senators and representatives as a class are altogether frothy, insincere and demagogic; yet certainly some of the things said in recent weeks in Washington cannot be taken too seriously.

This has been a long, trying summer in the capital. The weather was not the sole irritation.

Most members had planned definitely on being back home before July, instead of sweltering over a legislative jigsaw in late August. Political animosities got an unusual headstart for a pre-election year, and in many cases letters from constituents were none too cheering.

Nerves worn thin usually lead to sharp words, desperate threats, and dire predictions. But that may mean exactly nothing at all except that members are letting off steam, as most other human beings are accustomed to do on occasion.

No one should conclude that the session ended with every member wanting to get his fingers on the throat of one or more of his colleagues. Much that was said wasn't meant at all, and already has been forgotten and forgotten.

'In No Fit Condition'

ONE old-timer in politics, after a short visit to Washington a month before adjournment, observed that he never had seen congress so weary and irritable.

"They ought to recess and take a good rest," he said. "They are in no

It's Old Senate Custom

IN THE Senate, where service is longer, the feeling of brotherhood under the skin is especially strong, no matter how surface indications may belie it.

Once the senate was called a "Millionsaire Club." Now it hardly could qualify as that, but the club spirit remains. Often senators disagree so violently that the galleries think a physical encounter inevitable, and ten minutes later are swapping jokes in the cloakroom with the faintest of frowns.

A classic example was the fast personal friendship and close companionship of the late Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, who ridiculed reformers, and the elder LaFollette, who said every evil thing imaginable about machine bosses.

It is an unwritten rule that when a member of the senate is nominated for an appointive office, his nomination is confirmed without debate or delay. In that fashion was Albert B. Fall, for one, confirmed as a cabinet officer.

Few senators in recent times have so exasperated their colleagues as Tom Heflin of Alabama. Yet when Heflin got his AAA appointment recently, he had more senatorial endorsements than any other patronage seeker in the history of the present administration.

Not Too Serious

ALL of which constitute some of the reasons for not taking too seriously the hot words which pass in hot weather in Washington—for not concluding that the government is on the point of disruption and self-destruction just because a congressional session ends in clamor and recrimination.

ELLENVILLE

Ellenville, Sept. 9.—Miss Katharine T. Terwilliger of New York city spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. H.
Terwilliger.

Clayton Doughty of Napanoch and Harold Wenig of Ellenville have returned to the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa, Ala., to resume their studies.

Miss Grace Everest, head of the dramatic department of the local high school, was unable to resume her work last week due to the serious illness of her mother at their home in Plattsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Millet Parham of Wappingers Falls are the parents of a baby son born last Wednesday at the Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie.
The child has been named Williet Dutcher. Mrs. Parham is the former Julia Dutcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coles, Dutcher of Church street.

Miss Minerva Kinberg of New York city has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Kin-berg.

Mrs. George F. Andrews accompanied by her niece, Miss Ethel Andrews, and nephew, Harold Blas, left on Thursday for Perth Amboy,
N. J., where they spent several days.

Mrs. Frank Creek of Asbury Park, N. J., is spending some time with her husband at the home of Miss Ellen Edwards of Hickory street.

Mrs. Einar Sunde and son, Jack, who have been spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Lathrop, returned to their home in Brooklyn on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hottelberger of Woodcliff, N. J., who spent the month of August at Lake George, were guests of Mrs. Henry Ahrens.

Frank Brady of Middletown was a visitor in town during the week.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, Sept. 9.—Jacqueline Lee Loomis celebrated her birthday Sunday, September 8. Her birthday cake had three candles on it. Her two cousins and Warren Simmons were among those having ice cream and cake with her.

The Phoenicia Locomotive opened Tuesday evening, September 9, after being closed for the two summer months.

Little Wallace Elmer celebrated his birthday Saturday, September 7, and quite a number of boys and girls attended his party and had a good time. H. Boke attended the Olive reunion.

Ethiopia's Terrain Its Best Defense

Nation Confident Of Victory In Event Of War With Italy

By CHARLES NORMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

A land with an area greater than England, France and Italy combined listens for the beat of the war drums. It feels will sound soon from over its borders.

It listens—and feels confident of the issue.

Ethiopia's terrain has provided the empire of Haile Selassie with a natural stronghold. It contains the greatest mountain area on the African continent, steep, inaccessible ranges that hem the Abyssinian tableland, giving the fertile portion of the country the appearance of a turreted castle surrounded by moats that are mountains.

A race that has fought against foreign aggression and as conquerors for centuries has produced, like the country's abundant crops, a superabundance of redoubtable warriors.

Every Man A Soldier

From the earliest times to the present day, no foreigner visiting the ancient empire has failed to remark on the warlike attributes of the population.

It has been said that every Ethiopian is a potential soldier, with a rifle an indispensable piece of civilian equipment.

The men are great horsemen, and Ethiopia's cavalry, whether armed with the spears of the nineteenth century, or the rifles of the present, present an awesome spectacle as they ride with only the big toe in the stirrup.

They are of consistently tall stature and splendid physiques. In northeastern Abyssinia they are almost white-skinned, but towards the south this color gives place to black, with the prevailing skin tone of the country described as copper-colored.

Many of them are at present equipped with rifles taken from the Italians, Egyptians and Sudanese whom they have defeated.

"Kind to children—cruel to beasts" has been applied to the men of Ethiopia.

The Ethiopians are great horsemen and their cavalry is an important part of the army. A cavalry troop, pennons flying from long spears, is seen departing for "the front."

Few Ethiopians Work

Half of the able-bodied men have no productive occupation. Attired in picturesque chammars, standard garb of the country, they are to be seen always with a rifle slung over the shoulder and colorful cartridge belts around the waist. Now they are being mustered into a fighting force as Italy's modern legions mass on their borders.

An ample food supply leaves little ambition for commerce and trade, which is chiefly carried on by foreigners. In times of peace the Ethiopian attaches himself to the retinue of higher personages whose mark of rank can be gauged by the richness of their chammars and the number of their horses and followers.

The Ethiopian, with his splendid physique, is said to be unexcelled as a courier. Observers in the dark empire of Haile Selassie report some of them have been known to run 24 hours at a stretch bearing important news to almost inaccessible points.

The Ethiopians are a race of highlanders who do not like to get into the lowlands.

ETHIOPIANS STAGE 'DANCE OF WAR'

Chanting ancient war songs, fierce Ethiopian warriors are shown as they staged a dance of war through the streets of Addis Ababa as the East African country prepared for the expected attack from Italy. Intense war-like activity has gripped the city. (Associated Press Photo)

With war excitement increasing daily in Ethiopia, numerous patriotic demonstrations have been held. Here is an archbishop of the Coptic church as he urged the populace to support the policies of Emperor Haile Selassie. The country's religion centers in the Coptic church. (Associated Press Photo)

Pattern No. 1749-B

One-Piece Dress with a Brand New Scarf

This dress has a blouse of unusual charm, and you will find that in the new mode most of the interest is situated above the waistline in daytime clothes. The sleeves are cut in raglan fashion, and are wide as the mode requires, and cuffed with a shaped piece extending almost to the elbow. The sections of the blouse which form the front are rounded at the top, and slit, so that the scarf may be pulled through and tied. In the back there is a pleat at the center of the blouse, which matches the one in the skirt. A daring pleat in the front of the skirt gives that new swinging movement which is good this season. One pocket, large, and rather high, trims the skirt. The waistline is closely fitted, hips are smooth, and the waist blouses a little.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1749-B is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires about 2 1/2 yards of 39-inch material. The scarf and belt may be purchased.

SEND FOR THE FALL AND WINTER BARBARA BELL PATTERN BOOK. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes selecting designs from the one hundred and nineteen Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Interesting and exclusive fashions for little children and the difficult junior age; slenderizing, well-cut patterns for the mature figure, afternoon dresses for the most particular women and matrons and other patterns for special occasions are all to be found in the BARBARA BELL PATTERN BOOK. The home of General William Moultrie, noted Civil War hero, and the first South Carolinian to plant cotton, has been torn down to make way for the new Statler.

Automobile accidents on North Carolina highways during the last six years have cost the state $139,400,000. It is estimated, substantially more than the cost of government during that period.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S AUTUMN FROCK

The nation's first lady, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is shown in her first autumn frock—a smart afternoon dress. The creation is by Milgrim and is fashioned of jacquard satin crepe in Chamberlain red. A soft cascade of drapery falls down the side of the ankle length skirt and the drapery and pleating over the shoulders are caught with a rhinestone and ruby tone clip. (Associated Press Photo)

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Liana Merwin

Evening wraps do themselves proud this season, for every showing includes some numbers of outstanding beauty and elegance. Whether full length coats, wrap arounds, short flaring models, canes or figure fitting jackets, all are of rich and elegant styling, to make the formal costume more glamorous.

Black velvet is used for a great majority of these formal wraps—sometimes trimmed with lame or fur. Some of the more elaborate models are made entirely of lame that glisten and glitter in the artificial light.

The charming wrap sketched above is of black transparent velvet in a long dramatic full length model. Having no sleeves it just wraps around in monk-like fashion.

These hooded affairs are considered quite the thing to preserve midday's coiffure and keep the head protected when going to or from a formal party. The monk's hood is lined with silver metallic cloth for a shimmering contrast and the stitched velvet frame around it, falls in cuff effect when worn down. Worn over the head the hood is indeed flattering and gives a soft madonna-like silhouette and when down, the contrast of the silver with the black velvet is stunning.

HOME INSTITUTE WEDDING BOOKLET DISCUSSES DETAILS AND EXPENSES

PLAN CAREFULLY FOR PERFECT WEDDING

Lovely weddings are all alike in one respect: they're the result of careful planning. And especially they're the result of wise budgeting. Of knowing what expenses will arise and how much to allow for them.

"How much should a wedding cost?" It depends on the kind of wedding you're planning. Take the matter of expenses connected with a church ceremony. There'll be the decorating of the church. If this is done by your family or friends, with flowers from your own garden, the cost will be small. But you may prefer to have the services of a florist.

You may wonder what the organist's fee should be. That depends on the church, and is something you should find out beforehand. There will also be a fee to the sexton for opening the church, for heating and lighting. If you wish to have an awning put up, there may be an extra charge for that.

The clergyman's fee—paid by the bridegroom—varies also, according to where the wedding takes place, and whether it's a simple or an elaborate affair.

Law Changed Relating To Town Caucuses

John B. Starley, Clerk of the Ulster County Board of Elections, states that there has been an important change in the Election Law in relation to persons voting at town caucuses.

Town caucuses are about to be held by the Democratic and Republican parties in the various towns throughout the county of Ulster for the nomination of town officers. These town officers are nominated and elected every two years, the last town election occurring in the year 1933. Therefore these same elections occur this year. It has been the rule or custom in the past in most towns to permit all persons attending these caucuses to vote at the same, irrespective as to whether they were enrolled or not with the party conducting the caucus. That is to say, if the Democrats were holding the caucus, not only enrolled Democrats were allowed to vote but also other persons not enrolled with the Democratic party were permitted to vote. The same was true when the Republicans were conducting the caucus.

In the year 1934 and since the last party caucuses for nominating town officers were held, an amendment was made to the Election Law which does not permit any person to vote at a town or party caucus who is not enrolled with the party conducting the caucus. To illustrate this point, if the Republican party is conducting the caucus, no person shall be permitted to vote at such caucus unless he is an enrolled member of the Republican party as shall appear from a transcript of the enrollment from the registrar. Likewise when the caucus is being conducted by the Democratic party, no person shall be permitted to vote at such caucus unless he is an enrolled member of the Democratic party as shall appear from a transcript of the enrollment from the registrar.

It would be well for all persons desiring to vote at these caucuses and members of the respective Republican and Democratic county committees to bear this in mind. Section 143 of the Election Law as amended covers the point in question.

Premier Tsaldaris Urges Monarchy

Athens, Sept. 10 (AP)—Premier Panayotis Tsaldaris, head of the Greek Republic government, issued a proclamation today urging the people to vote for the restoration of the monarchy.

The proclamation came after a night which saw the tension between Monarchists and Republicans break in an open fight outside the doors of the cabinet chamber, with the bayonetting of two Republican leaders by Monarchist guards.

After deploping the night's events, Premier Tsaldaris' proclamation asked for calm and order, concluding:

"I consider democratic royalty as the natural regime for Greece and ask the people to vote for it in the impending plebiscite."

Last night's fight broke up a cabinet meeting.

General Panavotakos, leader of the anti-Monarchist forces and commander of the Athens garrison, led the group of resentful Republican officers into the cabinet meeting to protest against the shift of Premier Panayotis Tsaldaris from his position of neutrality on the restoration question to one favoring the return of former King George.

Minister of War George Kondylis promptly ordered the arrest of General Panavotakos and his brother, a Republican deputy. Both were bayoneted when Monarchist guards attempted to carry out the war minister's orders.

The brothers were taken to a hospital and tension spread over the capital. It was felt that the incident might set aflame the smoldering Republican forces.

Former King George of Greece is living in London. Reports of his impending return to the throne have recurred frequently in recent weeks.

It has been in close communication with royalist sympathizers of the Greek Republic. Only recently Mayor Kostas of Athens called on him in London bearing counsel from Tsaldaris not to return to Greece at the present time.

There has been a strong drive in Greece by the royalists for a plebiscite on the proposed restoration of the monarchy.

RESCUE OFFICIALS WORK TO PREVENT FURTHER TRAGEDY

Miami, Fla., Sept. 10 (AP)—Rescue officials turned their attention today to means of preventing a repetition of the disaster which last week wrought death and destruction in the Florida Keys.

Col. George E. Hays said he would suggest in his report to President Roosevelt that light cruisers be stationed in the storm zone to blanket storms, travel with them, and make reports to weather bureau.

Conrad Van Hyning, FERA administrator, said he would seek $200,000 to $300,000 for repair of storm damage and partial rehabilitation.

Funeral pyres continued to burn as 250 men beat across the keys in search of bodies of storm victims.

Red Cross reports last night said 10 persons are dead or missing as the result of the storm. Of these, 67 were veterans, 103 civilians.

Dr. William De Kline, Red Cross national health officer, said health conditions on the keys now are as good as before the storm.

Reilly and Two Others Barred from Primary

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Three men, including Edward J. Reilly, former counsel to Bruno Richard Hauptmann, were barred from the September 17 primaries today because the Court of Appeals ruled their nominating petitions faulty.

The court, New York state's highest tribunal, held yesterday that Reilly's petition for the Democratic nomination for judge of Kings county court was illegal because it lacked the necessary 2,500 signatures.

Reilly, in appealing a ruling of the New York city board of elections, admitted he lacked the required number of signatures but attacked the constitutionality of the 1935 election laws which required 2,500 signatures in New York city and only five per cent of the enrolled voters of a party upstate.

The other men whose appeals were dismissed were Thomas J. Dorsey of New York city, and Gilbert A. Loreto of the Bronx. The court upheld the Appellate Division, First Department, in ruling Dorsey's petition invalid because a subscribing witness failed to state where he had registered.

Loreto appealed from a Supreme Court order striking out a petition designating him as Democratic candidate for Municipal court justice in the first Bronx district. The court held that the names of the signers of his petition were on white paper instead of green as required by law.

POMONA COOKIE CONTEST WILL BE HELD SOON

Ulster County Grange cooks are getting ready for the next lap in the race to pick the best molasses cookie baker in New York state. The contest, which is state wide and is sponsored by American Agriculturist and the New York State Grange, opened in May. Since then thousands of Grange women have competed in their local Granges.

Pomona contests are now going on. Ulster county's will be held September 20, and is in charge of Mrs. Patrick O'Connor, Pomona Service and Hospitality Committee chairman. Women who won first prize in their local contest are eligible to compete. The top county winner will then match other Pomona winners in a final state contest, to be held at the time of the annual meeting of the State Grange in December.

Attractive merchandise prizes from 11 commercial companies will be awarded to both State and Pomona winners. A complete list of prizes follows:

List of Prizes for County Winners

One No. 2 1/2 tin Colonial molasses. One assorted box of Mrs. Durkin's cookies to county winners in Central New York.

Highland Trustees Report On Schools, Water Is Found Pure

Highland, Sept. 10.—The report from the analysis of the water used in the school from the well drilled on the school property was that it was pure with a rating of 884. This was announced with satisfaction at the meeting of the trustees Friday evening. Some parents had been interested and asked the quality of water used for drinking.

Reports of the condition of the outlying schools were given by Imbrie Richards that Vineyard avenue had been checked as to repairs to the roof, windows tightened, broken pane replaced, and Mr. Richards suggested a gravel walk be made from the road to the school door. He also reported for the Wilklow Corner's building that had been banked for warmth, a new door sill laid and loose flooring made secure. William H. Maynard said the Riverside schoolhouse was cleaned and a dead tree removed from the grounds.

At the Oakes school celotex had been put on the ceilings and carried down on the side walls, windows tightened and stripping put on. The furnace was to be installed there. Philip T. Schantz had the paint washed at the Elting's house and the fence repaired about the grounds. At Centerville the broken window had been replaced and paint was needed on the sash and gravel on the grounds. Principal Campbell requested a water cooler to be used in the outside room where Mrs. Matthews teaches. He reported the crowded condition of the third grade taught by Mrs. Fred Boyce who had 46 pupils. It was decided to change the rooms of Miss Dorothy Churchill and Mrs. Boyce as the former room was larger and more seats could be added, and that there were eight pupils who could be given another teacher. Mrs. Susan Ploss has 42 in her first grade.

There was need of additional bus space for pupils coming in from Riverside and the clerk was empowered to arrange tickets and children to be carried on the regular Kingston bus trip. This, it was said, would relieve the crowded condition on the school bus trips. A letter was read from the state department regarding changes that were replacements not new features which they seemed to think was being done.

Bills presented were that of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric and the telephone, Charles Grims $25 for work at the Oakes school; L. E. B. for gravel road at Riverside, $9.20; B. Lombard, gravel, sand and labor, $80; D. H. Kurtz, labor and material, $179.37; DeGroot Mead, $3.86; Milo F. Winchester, expense to Geneva Agriculture conference, $29.02. These were ordered paid.

Mrs. J. D. Rose said it would be necessary to get a certificate of indebtedness from the First National Bank to carry salaries until the tax money was collected. There was a little over $2,000 in the treasury at the close of the school year and this has been drawn upon for repairs and supplies for the district.

It is customary to elect the janitors at this time and Edward Tubbs and Harry Thompson were reelected for the central school at their former wages of $100 per month for Tubbs and $90 a month for Thompson. It was then voted to retain Mrs. Phillips for the Riverside school and Fred Wilklow for Centerville school at their former wages of $12 per month for single room schools and $25 for the two room schools. A. W. Lent then moved that the janitors be hired by the month in the outlying schools, beginning with September until July. This motion carried and the advisory committee was given power to engage the janitors for Elting, Vineyard, Oakes and Wilklow corner schools.

Mr. Campbell brought up the matter of again joining the State Athletic Association and it was voted to pay the $4 dues and retain membership. This allows the athletic teams to take part in sectional tournaments. He also presented a list of periodicals which were requested from the different departments in the school: Literary Digest, Herald Tribune, American Boy, Harpers Magazine, National Geographic, Design, American Childhood, School Arts Magazine, Nature Magazine, Ladies Home Journal, Good Housekeeping, American Girl, Readers Digest, Popular Science, Popular Mechanics, Country Gentleman, Popular Handcraft, Poultry Item, Poultry Tribune, Current History, and a French magazine. There was also a request concerning some text books which are to be referred to the text book committee. Mrs. J. D. Rose, W. H. Maynard, P. T. Schantz.

The members of the board were all present and the president, Mrs. Rose, was in the chair. John J. Gaffney, instructor in science, has been appointed to the position of vice-principal.

MILITARY HONORS FOR HURRICANE VICTIMS

In flag-draped coffins, veterans who died in FERA camps when a hurricane swept the Florida Keys were buried in Miami. The flags were given and put in place by veterans in Miami, who are shown here performing their final service for the dead. Later orders decreed burning for the bodies to prevent possible epidemic. High School Debaters To Meet In Kingston Saturday, October 5

The eighth annual convention of the Intercollegiate Debating League of Eastern New York will be held at Kingston this year. The date has been set at Saturday, October 5, starting at 9:45, according to an announcement made by Lucille Stephens, of Poughkeepsie, the secretary. A debate by Liberty High School is included on the program. Paul Sheets of the State College for Teachers at Albany, who has given the decision of the debate at other conferences, will discuss this feature.

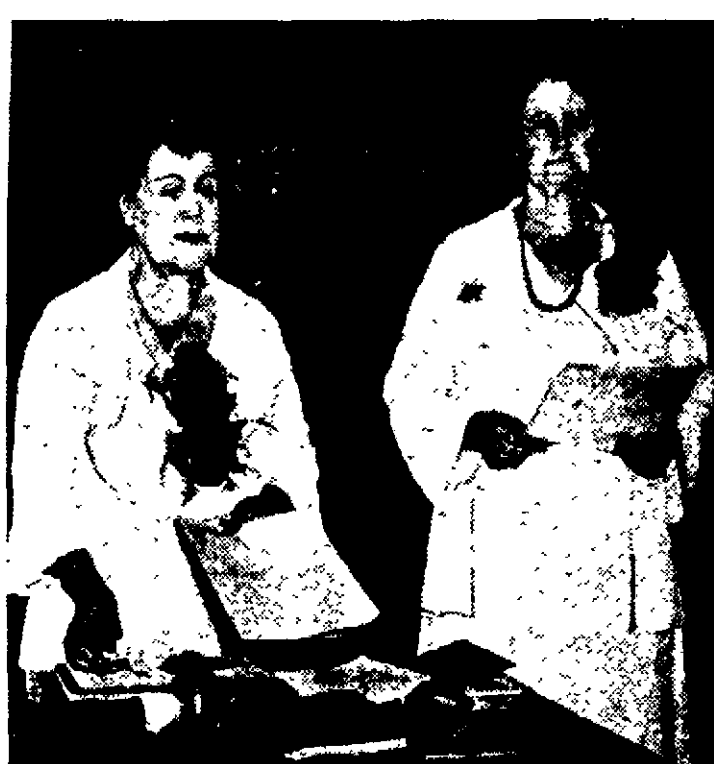

Miss Stephens suggests that inexperienced teams give non-decision debates in the afternoon. These groups, an affirmative and negative team from each school, would discuss the same proposition that Liberty discussed in the morning: "Resolved, That Home Work be Abolished." These debates will be held at 2 o'clock or before.

Isaac Walton Leager

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP).—Delegates from 62 chapters in the state gathered here today for the 10th annual convention of the New York Division, Isaac Walton League of America. The convention closes Thursday and conversation is one of the main themes. Lillian Osburn, New York state's conservation commissioner, is today's principal speaker.

It's remarkable the way delinquents everywhere are turning back. Either people are becoming more law-abiding, or they think about their going to be worth something.

'ALCOHOL EDUCATION' ASKED

W. C. T. U. delegates meeting in convention at Atlantic City pledged cooperation in promoting "alcohol education." Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith (left) of Evanston, Ill., national president, is shown as she addressed the group on the same. Mrs. Nellie G. Burger, Springfield, Mo., national recording secretary, is at right. Ulster Oil Men To Fight Taxation

The oil men of Ulster county held a meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel recently, under the leadership of Chairman C. O. Fromer, of the Fromer Petroleum Corp., to perfect plans of organization to prevent discriminatory taxes on the highway users of Ulster county.

The committee reported a prospective membership already under way of approximately 2,000 petroleum marketers in this county, united in their pledge to reduce gasoline taxes—to apply motor vehicle and gasoline tax revenues to highway improvement—to oppose unreasonable restriction to motor vehicle operation, and to oppose additional taxes on the sale of petroleum products. Representative marketers in all parts of the county were present. The committee unanimously resolved in favor of an immediate reduction of gasoline taxes to the normal tax of 20 per gallon and a removal of the 20 emergency tax in place thereof. The committee favored the imposition of a general sales tax. By this means necessary revenue will be derived from the general public in accordance with their purchasing power and afford immediate relief to the highway users, who, although they represent only about one-sixth of the population, pay over one-half of the state revenues.

The Ulster county group is one of 62 groups in New York state pledged to the immediate relief in the forthcoming session of the legislature from this discriminatory taxation. The next meeting of the committee will be at the Governor Clinton at 12 o'clock, September 17.

A mass meeting is planned October 3, at which time speakers of prominence will be brought here to put the gasoline tax question squarely before the people. The committee will advise the place in the near future.

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, Sept. 9.—Miss Shirley Walden was the guest of honor at a tea party given on Wednesday afternoon at "Rest Place" by Mrs. Alice Campbell and Miss Betty Shea. Other guests were Mrs. Dr. Sanger Carlton, Miss Natalie Sullivan of Baltimore, Mrs. Henry Wood, Miss Nina Woodward and Mrs. Kenneth Davenport. A feature of the afternoon was the fringing of a linen tea set which was presented to Miss Walden.

Fred Mack, who is employed by Howard Van Winkle, has moved his family into the tenant house of Mr. Van Winkle.

A special meeting of the officers and teachers of the M. E. Sunday School will be held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ransom.

Chicago—Alex Fine, a grocer, found a way to "beat" the handys who have been "chilling" store owners by taking the victim's cash and his trousers to hamper pursuit.

The "pants" gunmen turned up at Fine's store and fled with $20 and Alex's trousers. Fine donned a "spare" pair of trousers and took out after them. He didn't catch them but he did find the stolen trousers on a sidewalk where the robbers dropped them in their haste.

Superintendent Conway asked authorization to round the street corner at Wynkoop Place and Clifton avenue, and also two corners at the central post office. The board gave the desired authorization.

Sidewalks in front of drive in gas stations were also discussed by the board and Commissioner Roach said that it was getting so that pedestrians would have no sidewalks to walk on as gas station owners went ahead and took up the sidewalk and removed the curb to replace it with concrete ramps. It was getting so, he said, that it looked like Gasoline Alley.

Bills and claims were read and the board then adjourned.

Players' Guild To Elect Officers

The Kingston Players' Guild, local dramatic group recently organized as a civic project, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Municipal Auditorium to elect permanent officers for the coming year.

William Heltzman, who was the only candidate for president nominated at the meeting last week, and therefore automatically elected to that office, will be installed this evening.

Candidates to be voted on tonight are: For vice president, Janet Evans and Shirley Silverman; for secretary, Olga Vetoskie, Mildred Byrne and George Teller; business manager, Stephen Breitfeller, William Chananof and Robert Flynn.

The president emphasizes the great importance of all potential members being present at this meeting to vote, since the selection of the right officers will tend to eliminate ill-feeling and controversy in the future.

Today

Broadway: "Alice Adams". Katharine Hepburn rises to new emotional glory in this adaptation from the Booth Tarkington novel of the same name, and with suave direction, a brilliant cast of supporting players, and excellent camera treatment, this love story of a girl becomes screen entertainment of distinction. Never was Miss Hepburn more beautiful and more at home than in the title role and she plays through the joys and sorrows of Alice Adams with a realism bordering near to genius. And Fred Stone plays a close second to the star in a characterization that brings out a talent known along Broadway for over a decade. Others featured include the likable Fred MacMurray and Evelyn Venable.

Orpheum: "Let's Live Tonight" and "Circumstantial Evidence." In an effort to be checked full of continental sophistication, the first feature has numerous subtle lines and the action of a small after rousing from a sound sleep. It tells of a young girl who falls in love with a mysterious stranger and she later finds out he is the brother of the man she is engaged to marry. Lilian Harvey, Tullio Carminati, Janet Beecher and Tala Birell. "Circumstantial Evidence" offers Shirley Grey and Chick Chandler in a story of crime and its detection.

Kingston: "We're in the Money". Those two Warner Brothers cutups, Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell, are turned loose in a brand new plot situation in this, their latest comedy contribution to humanity, and wonderful to relate, the two young women are really funny in a show of hilarity and originality. It is the best thing the duo have given the screen, for in the roles of a couple of gold digging process servers, they have plenty of opportunity for comedy. Hugh Herbert's assistance is invaluable and Ross Alexander and Phil Regan are good in featured parts. Good for an evening of laughs.

Tomorrow

Broadway: "Accent on Youth."

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Once Frank Morgan thought would be, figuratively speaking, out of the trenches by Christmas. In his case, the trenches were Hollywood. But that was nearly four years ago, and here he is, still making pictures and liking them.

"It's not unpleasant, however," he reflected then, "the money is good, and New York is pretty hot this time of year. Who knows? I might even stay through Christmas."

Comedian 'Discovered'

The real reason Morgan stayed, he says, is that Hollywood discovered, however belatedly, that he is a comedian as well as a type for dignified bank presidents, business men, and stern magistrates. The discovery came with "The Affairs of Cellini," and he has been glorying in comedy rather consistently ever since.

Morgan is the younger of the screen brothers. He is 45, eight years younger than Ralph, but Frank is heavier by about 25 pounds. Many fans think Frank is the older. When Morgan first came to Hollywood he bought a yacht. He sold it, but he is planning to buy another. He likes the sea but his swimming is nothing to write home about. His Mother Wupperman, who at 84 is active president of the United States company of which Frank is vice-president, Frank was rescued from drowning not long ago in his own swimming pool, where it seems he recently learned to swim for the first time in his life.

Bitters For Others

He is interested in his bitters, but not with his whole soul; he can't drink anything that has bitters in it. He also dislikes candy, and hates to answer the telephone—which latter is a not unimportant affliction of actors.

His growing green is one of the wonders of Hollywood, with 30 different colors to it. Cleary Court-nidge, the British comedienne who is his team-mate in "The Perfect Gentleman," calls it a "rainbow with quintessence."

In sports he prefers golf, and in clothes the sports kind. He likes to drive an open roadster, wearing a helmet. He loves dogs, and has a way with children. His own son is a student at Stanford University. His best acting job, he confesses, was not on stage or screen—but the time he made an impression on a crowd in an effort and the agent's lawyer when he wanted to divorce with the agent's services. The lawyer, after it was over, told the agent: "Come on, if he made that speech in court they'd probably hang you."

One of Broadway's biggest successes, this story of maturity versus adolescent youth tells how the fairer sex appreciate experience and understanding rather than the rah-rah of the youthful college boy when it comes to the pleasurable pastime of falling in love. This play tells of a successful playwright, getting along in years, but still attractive in a mature way. His young secretary falls in love with him but they are worlds apart in age and he thinks the whole thing silly even though he is attracted to her. So the secretary goes about proving he is mistaken and that age is no barrier to happiness. Older people will enjoy the plot structure of this play for it shows that collegiate youth isn't the bundle of appeal it has been cracked up to be. A fine cast makes the play doubly enjoyable. Among the featured players are Herbert Marshall, Sylvia Sidney, Phillip Reed, Holman Herbert, Astrid Allwyn and the entire production was directed by Wesley Ruggles.

Orpheum: "Mississippi" and "Black Sheep." Bing Crosby sings his dreamy way into your heart in the opening play, the story of a boy branded as a coward and who later becomes the terror of the Mississippi. A killer who sings at his work. The songs are excellent in this show, the comedy of W. C. Fields is a highlight of the picture and Joan Bennett makes a lovely heroine. "Black Sheep" is a mystery yarn with Edmund Lowe and Claire Trevor featured. Amateur Night is a special added feature of the Wednesday evening program.

Kingston: "The Raven" and "Strangers All." Suggested from the poem of Poe, the first attraction was screened for the express purpose of giving its audience a nice evening of terrifying episodes. To make sure the show would have the essential elements of horror, Boris Karloff (Dracula) Lugosi both wander through a series of startling events and both look as evil as one could wish. The play attempts to show how a man's mind can react to constant brooding. Others in the cast are Inez Courtney and Irene Ware. "Strangers All" is the comical story of a family who misunderstand each other completely and it is fast, enjoyable comedy from start to finish. The success of the play depends entirely upon the skill of the actors and fortunately a fine cast makes this show a treat. May Robson, Preston Foster and Billy Bakewell are featured. Good entertainment.

The aborigines of Tasmania, who belonged to the early stone and wood age, are now extinct.

LONG'S BODYGUARD

Joe Messina (above), one of the bodyguards who traveled with Huey Long, was unable to protect his chief when an assailant opened fire on him in the Louisiana state house at Baton Rouge.

Ruler of all he surveyed in Louisiana, Huey Long carried to the senate some of the dictatorial habits acquired in handing down the law in his home state. Above he's shown (left) in his version of what the well-dressed senator will wear; (center) casually decreeing "Jim Farley is on the way out," and (right), a fashion plate again, railing against the President. Senator Long's Fight For Life Told in Terse Chronological Order

(By The Associated Press)
(Time is Central Standard)
Sunday

9:20 p. m.—Senator Huey Long shot in abdomen by Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr., who is immediately shot to death by guards. Senator taken to hospital.

11:15 p. m.—Blood transfusion is performed.

3 a. m.—Physicians issue bulletin: "Senator Long was wounded by one bullet entering the upper right side, emerging from the back. The colon was punctured in two places. The first blood transfusion has been given the senator with good results. The condition of Senator Long is thoroughly satisfactory. It will be 72 to 90 hours before further developments can be expected."

4:45 a. m.—Second bulletin is issued: "Senator Long was shot through the right upper quadrant of the abdomen, the bullet going through the body. There were two penetrations of the transverse colon and considerable hemorrhage from the mesentery and omentum. The patient's condition is satisfactory, and no important information will be available for about 72 hours."

6 a. m.—Senator's secretary visits bedside and emerges with statement: "He has improved more in the last 15 minutes than during all of last night."

8:24 a. m.—Hospital reports he is gaining strength.

9:00 a. m.—Reported to be gaining blood. Second blood transfusion given.

His Plans Sketchy Schedule

Baton Rouge, Sept. 10 (AP)—Bernard Rust, Transian commissioner for culture and education, disclosed today that Jewish school children from 10 to 14 years must get out of all German schools by Easter, 1936.

Special Pistol Shot Guarded Long Home

Washington, Sept. 10 (AP)—Special locks and a crack pistol shot guarded Senator Huey P. Long when he was in his capital home.

The locks were on the doors of his five-room apartment, in a fashionable neighborhood.

The pistol expert was Murphy Roden, before whose fire some witnesses say Long's assassin fell at Baton Rouge.

A side door in the Long apartment had through a short, private hall to Roden's room. Two other bodyguards usually were quartered elsewhere in the apartment house, with in easy reach by telephone.

It was Roden, acquaintances said today, who drove the senator's new automobile, talked with those who called up to ask for a "Share-the-Wealth advance," met callers and tended to countless other details of the senator's life. They said he was a high school and business graduate, a typist, a conservative dresser, a workman who can empty a pistol quickly into a four-inch target at 50 feet.

Ray California Home

Los Angeles, Sept. 10 (AP)—Angela Easthart, America's foremost woman star, and her husband, George Easthart, New York publisher, have bought a home in north Hollywood. The residence is close to the Air Terminal, Burbank, where Miss Easthart renders most of her flying activities.

WHITFIELD

Whitfield, Sept. 10—Miss Bell and Virginia Marshall are spending their vacation with friends in New York.

Little Dorothy Gillings returned to her home in New York Saturday after spending her summer vacation with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gillings.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Davis and daughter, Marjorie, Mrs. Della Davis were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hall Arts of Libbards on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Friend Withrow of New York were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Dunn last Sunday.

Miss Lillian Enderly spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. James B. Quick, and family.

Mrs. Della Davis spent Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin B. Davis.

Flower-Banked Grave Marks Resting Place Of Long's Assassin

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 10 (AP)—A flower banked grave today marked the resting place of Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr., mild mannered physician who turned assassin and mortally wounded Senator Huey P. Long.

The 30-year old eye specialist, in turn shot down by Long's bodyguards, was buried yesterday following services attended by thousands of persons.

The physician's parents, his wife of two years and his associates could give no reason beyond a political opposition to Long for shooting the senator.

His bullet-torn body was lowered into the grave while the throng at the services stood in a heavy rain.

Six physicians, his associates served as pallbearers. The office of the dead was chanted by the Rev. L. Gassler. Interment was in Rose-lawn cemetery.

Wreaths from the Kiwanis Club and the Young Businessmen's Club decked the casket and large delegations of each organization attended the funeral. Others present were former Governor John M. Parker, Congressman J. Y. Sanders, Jr., Dean R. L. Tullis and District Attorney John Fred Odum.

Came Near to Death.

"I am convinced beyond any doubt," Dr. Weiss' father said, "that my son did not go into the capitol Sunday night to kill Long. Whatever happened there, what brought the Senator and those who killed him, I do not think I shall ever know. That is something we'll never know. And what happened there, what brought him there, will always be between him and his maker."

The mother, too, could give no motive for her son's action.

"We had no word, no intimation, nothing," she said. "All that we know is that he took his son seriously. Right with him was right above everything."

The elder Dr. Weiss declared his son's attempt on Senator Long's life was not motivated by a proposed bill before the legislature that would have transferred his father-in-law, Judge P. N. Fary of Evangeline Parish, from one district to another.

"Absolutely not," he said. "We had no reason to take that seriously because the judge did not take it seriously."

Dr. Weiss, a graduate of Tulane University, was known among his associates as a "conscientious workman," a "serious fellow." He served his internship at the Tours intern-ary in New Orleans and at Bellevue Hospital in New York city.

In 1933, he married Yvonne Pary, a graduate of Newcomb College in New Orleans and of the Sorbonne in Paris.

He had been associated with his father, also an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist.

Weiss Called Brilliant.

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—Dr. J. Hallock Moore, a personal friend, described U. S. Senator Huey P. Long's assassin today as a "brilliant" man who was "very thorough and painstaking" and "with the courage of his convictions."

Dr. Moore served his four year internship under Dr. C. A. Weiss, Jr., while the latter was house surgeon at Bellevue Hospital, New York. Dr. Moore succeeded Dr. Weiss in the post. Both were about the same age.

The Huntington physician disclosed that Dr. Weiss brought the phrase "Weiss Tag" to the medical profession. He said:

"He (Dr. Weiss) was so insistent upon thoroughness that he used to inspect all tonsillectomies personally. If the least vestige of a tonsil was not removed, he would raise the roof."

"It got to the point finally where such a tonsil remnant was known as a 'Weiss Tag.'"

Was Temperate.

Dr. Weiss, the Huntington physician said, was temperate and thorough, nothing of working "18 to 40 hours to achieve an end."

"He (Dr. Weiss) was a brilliant man," Dr. Moore continued. "I feel certain he went to his death in defense of an ideal that meant little to him personally. But, that's the kind of a fellow he was, very thorough and painstaking and with the courage of his convictions."

"I am confident that Dr. Weiss, after careful thought, concluded that Huey Long should be eradicated, and set out to do it as thoroughly as he would do anything else. I am confident also that Dr. Weiss never talked it (the shooting) over with anyone else."

Fifth Ward Democrat.

The regular meeting of the Fifth Ward Democratic Club will be held this evening at 8:15 at 277 East Strand. All members are requested to be present. The committee for a card party to be held Thursday evening, September 12, will make final reports.

Sen. Huey Long Dies After Fight For Life

Christenberry, were the senator's sisters. Mrs. W. M. Knott and Mrs. Stewart Hunt, and their husbands; his brothers, Dr. G. S. Long, Julius and Earl and the latter's wife; his father, Dr. Roy Long, and several cousins.

The marriage of Long and the former Rose McConnell followed a courtship typical of the speed of the senator's life. They met in Memphis. Long, traveling agent for a packing firm, was promoting a cooking contest. Mrs. Long won the prize. A few months later, during a visit to Shreveport, she was instrumental in exonerating Long, who was charged with participating in a minor shooting scrape. She produced steel studs as proof he escorted her to a theatre the night of the shooting.

Fifth Blood Transfusion.

The fifth blood transfusion which the physicians attempted to administer to Senator Long never was completed. At 3 a. m., Dr. E. L. Sanderson announced there no longer was any hope.

"He is dying," he said. The end was only little more than an hour away then and the physicians had abandoned their battle against death.

"We have done everything in the world we could for him," Dr. Sanderson said before death visited.

Governor Allen made the official death announcement. His voice was husky and barely audible. "This marks with the death of Huey P. Long the passing of the greatest builder of economies in the history of Louisiana in 25 years," he said. "It also marks with the death of Huey P. Long the passing of the greatest hero for the common right of all the people of America."

While Long and his physicians fought for his life, the roads around the hospital were barred by troops and police who swarmed over all Baton Rouge, a multiplication of the guard which failed to save him in the statehouse.

The legislature met yesterday and ground out the senator's bills. One of them gerrymandered the political bailiwick of District Judge B. H. Pavy, the assassin Weiss' father-in-law. Guards searched all briefly last night and sent the bills to his finance committee after a minister implored a deity "too wise to err" to save the senator.

The parish coroner started an inquest into the death of Dr. Weiss, but postponed it because only two witnesses testified. He said he might have to close the inquest because he was powerless to make the senator's guards, slayers of the assassin, appear.

Just before Senator Long came into his range, Weiss said: "It won't be Long now."

As an auto bore Senator Long to the hospital he said: "I wonder why he shot me."

Much Speculation There was much speculation on the possible effect of Senator Long's death on the political empire which he built largely about his own dynamic personality. Some political leaders, including the veteran Senator Ellison D. Smith, (D-S. C.) believed the whole Long movement, in the state and in the nation, would collapse.

During the night, after hope for his life had been abandoned, the senator's political lieutenants held conferences on the future of his vast political organization.

The conferees including Governor Allen, Seymour Weiss, Abe Shushan, Mayor of the levee board; Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe, Speaker Allen Vandevander of the house of representatives and George Wallace, Long's legislative aide.

At the top in the order of succession is Governor Allen.

But "O. K." has never cared much for politics. Allen last night said he would retire after the current term.

Two Courses Open. There were two courses open to the Long leaders:

1. A political oligarchy, with the lieutenants of the senator carrying on his policies.

2. The designation of one of these lieutenants as leader of the organization.

Political observers and politicians pondered this primary question: Is there anyone in the organization capable to fill the place of the chief?

In addition, there was the possibility of a seriously cropping up among the lieutenants, of internal strife in the organization.

The New Orleans situation offered, also, a serious threat. Recently Long—in his fight against his arch-enemy, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley—won over, because of his control of finances and patronage, many of the district leaders in the old-line Democratic organization.

Now with Long gone, Walmsley is in a strong position to rebuild his New Orleans organization.

But there was more to puzzle the political world than Louisiana. What will become of the hundred of "the share-the-wealth" units built by the senator and his organization? They spread across the nation. Yesterday, while Long was fighting for his life, the St. Louis unit announced it would soon open offices for "Long for a second term."

A few weeks ago, in New York, Long said he would run as an independent in '36 at "the Republicanism" and there is no liberal candidate in the field.

But in Baton Rouge today, the national scene was submerged in the state. Long was dead—and his lieutenants had to think about the future. The organization he built up waited for a new leader.

True Night View It was a long night with about the hospital as Long's strength ebbed. Traffic was diverted. Those who had special permits they had been given to get through the heavy guard and to the hospital. The doorkeepers, for the most part, were given no thought about the struggle.

Now and then an attendant or a nurse dropped a word to indicate what things were going. The firm real alarm among the watchers came at 7 p. m., when a serious sinking spell was reported unofficially. Up to that time not even the necessity for a second blood transfusion at noon yesterday could dim the hope that the senator's enormous vitality would pull him through.

An hour and a half after the sinking spell was reported one of the doctors said: "The senator is holding his own."

But shortly later the alarmed physicians ordered blood tests for another transfusion. An oxygen tank was rushed in and it was learned an oxygen tent had been taken in earlier. The transfusion was completed at midnight.

A little while later the senator became delirious and then intermittently unconscious. He was sinking fast. Word came out of the sick room that there was no longer any hope. The physicians gave up.

They sat back and awaited what they knew was inevitable.

Up From Cotton Rising from cotton patch to national prominence as United States senator and dictatorial boss of Louisiana, Huey Pierce Long attained the highest degree of state control ever recorded under American Democratic form of government.

He was a psychological enigma to many and a political phenomenon to virtually all experts. He conceived and did things which none but he thought possible and which none of the "old line" politicians ever tried.

His followers called him "genius," "friend of the poor" and "champion of the people's rights."

An army of enemies, whom he repulsed again and again at the polls or in the courts, dubbed him "demagogue," "madman," "destroyer of constitutional government" and worse terms running the gamut from "election thief" to "political racketeer."

Value of "Kingfish" He called himself "Kingfish." It was a term applied originally in a sarcastic vein to an opponent. Long once assumed it jocularly for himself, found a ready publicity response and thereafter clung to it.

From the time he shook from the heels the dust of a Hillside cotton farm in Louisiana's Winn parish as a tobacco-chewing youngster of 16 to become a traveling salesman, until a subservient legislature in 1934 and 1935 passed laws which transferred control of the state's every activity to the political machine which he dominated, Long was a law unto himself.

In the national field he launched a campaign to restrict big incomes and "spread the wealth" by making every person in the United States free of debt and giving each individual $5,000. This followed Louisiana state enactment of a debt moratorium law.

Long was born August 30, 1893, on a 320-acre farm which became part of the town of Winnfield, La., when the coming of a railroad transformed the fields into city lots. He was the seventh child in a family of nine.

He attended Shreveport high school but did not finish the course. His college work was confined to three months in the law department of the University of Oklahoma and about seven months of intensive cramming in the law school of Tulane University. Then he passed a special examination for admission to the bar and was admitted to practice in May, 1915.

Alibi Witness Becomes Wife When he was 19 years old, he was arrested at Shreveport, accused of being involved in a shooting scrape. An alibi cleared him, Miss Rose McConnell testifying that he had escorted her to a theatre that evening and producing the seat stubs as proof. The next year they were married. They became the parents of two sons and a daughter.

Long began his political career early. At 25 he was elected to the state board of railroad commissioners. He ran unsuccessfully for governor when he was 30 and attained that office four years later.

Defeating an attempt to impeach him, he consolidated his political power and won the 1930 federal senatorial primary and election from the veteran Joseph E. Ransdell. Finding that his foes planned to acquire the governorship, he retained that office until January 25, 1932, when he took his seat in Washington.

That same year he helped his close political ally, John Overton, win Louisiana's other senatorial post from Edwin S. Broussard.

Thereafter he shuttled between the national and state capitals, defending his state organization against attacks and reinforcing it until his personal power virtually was absolute, while in Washington he kept himself in the spotlight by bitter attacks upon the national administration.

A Blatant Figure Although Long's opponents dubbed his pet measures "clatrap" or worse and sought to discredit him by piling exposure of personal scandal, he went blithely on his way. He had undisputed talents as a shrewd lawyer, always rewarded his adherents and waged incessant warfare against his foes, but chiefly he relied upon a rare personality as a speaker.

He knew just when to say "ain't," when to quote scripture and when to speak logically and clearly.

That talent was displayed early in high school he dabbled in track athletics as a mile runner and he always played baseball at any opportunity, but chiefly he was a debater and his forensics won him a scholarship at Louisiana State University.

Lack of money for living expenses and books forced him to forego that opportunity and he turned his ready tongue to politics "on the road."

After winning admission to the bar, he hung out a shingle in Winnfield and launched himself into politics. In 1918 he was elected state railroad commissioner for the north Louisiana district, changed his residence from Winnfield to Shreveport, and began his long fight with the Standard Oil Company.

Page Three: Main Long's Old Stock He related in his autobiography that as a Winnfield attorney he had acquired stock in several independent oil companies, either as fees for legal work or by purchase from clients. In Shreveport he built a $40,000 home and was "in a fair way to becoming a millionaire" when the big companies controlling the pipe lines, refused to take oil from independent wells. "My share became worth less than 40 cents over night," he said.

Long manipulated a finding favorable to the independents through the public service commission and later the legislature declared the pipe lines public carriers.

When elected governor in 1928, Long went after his political foes, clearing them out of various state offices and arousing bitter enemies. In March, 1929, when he called a special session of the legislature to enact a tax of 5 cents a barrel on crude oil, the storm broke.

The house of representatives presented articles of impeachment containing 19 charges. Among them were accusations that he had attempted to bribe legislators, used the appointive power to influence the judiciary and flouted the constitutional limitations on the governorship, that he had told a bodyguard to kill an opposition legislator and that he had participated in a scandalous "studio party" in New Orleans.

Senate Minority Saves Him Long defeated the impeachment proceedings in the senate. A two-thirds vote was necessary to convict and he got 15 senators, one more than one-third, to sign a statement that they would not vote for impeachment because the articles were faultily drawn. All 15 were rewarded by political preferment.

Long ran for the United States senatorship in 1930, won a closely contested democratic primary and was elected in November without formal opposition. In the same election bond issues of $68,000,000 for roads and of $5,000,000 for Louisiana's 33-story capitol were approved.

Ordinarily Long would have taken his seat in the federal senate on March 4, 1931, but he had fallen out with the lieutenant governor, Dr. Paul Cyr, and decided to hold on to the governorship until he could be assured that no political foe would succeed him. Dr. Cyr finally went before a notary and took the oath of governor filing an ouster suit against Long. The latter, declaring that Cyr by his action had vacated the office of lieutenant governor, caused A. O. King, president pro tempore of the state senate, to assume that post, then went into court and personally argued a victory against the ouster suit.

His next move was to engineer O. K. Allen through the gubernatorial primary of January, 1932, the whole Long state for state offices and a majority of his nominees for the legislature winning also. Then he entrained for Washington, leaving King as acting governor until election formalities in November save the office to Allen. Also he formed a law partnership in New Orleans and purchased a home on Audubon boulevard in that city, shifting his residence from Shreveport.

Kingfish Heard In Senate The senate custom that new members listen and learn meant nothing to the red-haired Huey. He declaimed his "share-the-wealth" project and denounced his party's leader, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, for "compromising" with the Republicans. In one of his early speeches he became so personal in his comment upon fellow senators that he was forced to stop.

In February, 1932, Long was back in New Orleans, had himself named Democratic national committeeman and supervised selection of a delegation to the party's national convention in Chicago. Before that body met he came out in favor of the Roosevelt candidacy for the presidential nomination and when his delegation's credentials were challenged won a majority vote in the convention, hailed as the first test of Roosevelt strength.

After the convention he campaigned in Arkansas for Mrs. Hattie Caraway, who won the Democratic senatorial nomination. Then he canvassed Louisiana for Overton and thence took his sound trucks and literature distributing automobiles to the Dakotas in advocacy of Roosevelt's election to the presidency.

Down in Louisiana Gov. Long's expenditures of $79,000,000 in the year 1931 reacted into a state treasury crisis and in 1932 an extensive program of fresh taxation was put through. It started a revolt which climaxed in January, 1935, when the Square Deal Association, organized by anti-Long people, assembled in Baton Rouge to demand that Gov. Allen summon the legislature in special remedial session. Senator Long hurried there. Many of the square dealers were armed and the militia and state police were called out. One citizen was wounded and extensive bloodshed narrowly averted.

Coincidentally Long opened a personally conducted court inquiry into an alleged plot which he said his enemies had formed to kill him. The hearing was conducted under a fine of machine guns and bayonets and Long declaimed after it that he had proved his contention.

Tells Senate of Plot On August 3, a month before the Baton Rouge shooting, Long took the senate floor to read to that body what he said was a plot on his life. From a thick sheet of typewritten paper he described what he termed the latest "plot" to assassinate him.

Clothing some of his remarks in half-jests behind which lurked an air of conviction, Long said two of his Louisiana supporters had declined to attend a banquet recording service to a conference of Louisiana political figures in a New Orleans hotel room.

At that conference, he said, open threats against his life were made, one unidentified "colored" saying he would be willing to "draw a line" who should "kill" in the senate.

His own challenge to President Roosevelt on a "share-the-wealth" platform was considered by some as motivating Mr. Roosevelt's influence on the wealth tax bill.

Senate Candidates On August 15 in New York Long announced he would be an independent candidate for president in 1936, in the state that he was totally shot

Assassin's Weapons Have Struck Down Many Noble Figures

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—The assassin's weapon has struck down many a notable political figure, causing serious political crises.

Three presidents of the United States succumbed to "killers" bullets: Abraham Lincoln, April 15, 1865; James A. Garfield, September 19, 1881; and William McKinley, September 14, 1901.

An assassin fired the tinder that roared into the World War conflagration; Archduke Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary and his wife, Countess Sophie Chotek, were slain June 28, 1914, at Sarajevo, Bosnia, by Gavrillo Princip a Yugoslav student.

Assassins failed in attempts on the lives of President Theodore Roosevelt, who was wounded in Milwaukee, Wis., and of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the target for Giuseppe Zangara, on February 15, 1933, at Miami, Fla.

The bullet intended for Franklin D. Roosevelt struck Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, who died March 6 of his wound.

Other notable Americans who were victims of assassins were Mayor Carter H. Harrison, Sr., of Chicago, October 28, 1893; and Governor William Goebel, governor of Kentucky, January 30, 1900.

Many crowned heads were struck down by political killers. They included:

Abdul Aziz, Sultan of Turkey, June 17, 1876; Czar Alexander II of Russia, March 13, 1881; Nasr-Eddin, Shah of Persia, May 1, 1896; Empress Elizabeth of Austria, February 18, 1898.

King Humbert of Italy, July 29, 1899; Alexander and Draga of Serbia, June 11, 1903; King Carlos of Portugal and Crown Princess Louis Philippine, February 1, 1908; Prince Ito of Japan, October 26, 1909.

King George of Greece, March 18, 1913; Czar Nicholas of Russia and his family, July 16, 1918; Nadir Shah, of Afghanistan, June 6, 1933.

King Alexander of Yugoslavia was killed by an assassin's bullet at Marseille last October 9. Louis Barthou, foreign minister of France, was fatally wounded in the same fusillade.

Presidents, premiers and dictators have bowed before bullets, bombs and dirks.

Engelbert Dollfuss, chancellor of Austria, was trapped and slain by Nazis July 25, 1934, in an abortive putsch.

Ion G. Duca, premier of Rumania, was killed December 29, 1933. Dr. Walter Rathenau, German foreign minister, was slain June 24, 1922.

Louis M. Sanchez Cerro, president of Peru; President-Elect Gen. Alvaro Obregón of Mexico; Gen. Luis Mena, former president of Nicaragua; Gen. Francisco "Pancho" Villa of Mexico; Gen. J. C. Gomez of Venezuela; Gen. Venustiano Carranza of Mexico and Francisco I. Madero of Mexico.

Tidewater to Erect Service Station Mary A. Ryan and Anna E. Ryan of 69 Main street have entered into a lease with the Tidewater Oil Company for the improvement of the Ryan property at Hurley avenue and Washington avenue. By the lease which has been recorded the owners lease to the Tidewater Oil Company the property for a term of five years from August 12, 1935. Under the lease the oil company is to remove the present building on the premises and erect a modern service station.

Cafeteria Supper. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Ulster Fair Reformed Church will hold a cafeteria supper on the lawn at the home of Leslie Herring Wednesday evening, September 11. Supper will be served at 5:30.

Harvest Supper. A harvest supper will be given by the Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church of Phoenicia on Friday evening, September 13. An appetizing menu has been prepared. Supper will be served from 5 o'clock until all are served.

Ladies' Aid Meeting The Ladies' Aid Society of the Fair Street Reformed Church will hold its regular business meeting Wednesday afternoon, September 11, at 2:30 at the church.

If the Republicans go Hoover, the Democrats go Roosevelt and there is no other liberal candidate."

His aggressive tactics did not stop with the administration, but extended to the senate. Three filibusters marked his participation in the 1935 session. On the closing night he talked from five o'clock to midnight on behalf of the cotton and wheat loan rider to the deficiency bill, defeating the bill itself and with it appropriations to start the social security program and other measures. Previous ones lasted 12 hours, in an attempt to prevent a joint session to hear the Roosevelt bonus veto message; and nearly 14 hours against NRA extension.

After adjournment House leaders revealed plans for an identification of Long's regime in Louisiana under a bill giving wide powers to a federal committee.

Long dared the investigators to "come on" in the face of the plan, he had the seventh special session of 1935 called for the Louisiana Legislature for another militant challenge to Washington. It was during this session at Baton Rouge that Long made an attempt to cause the arrest of federal agents administering some New Deal laws in the state, that he was totally shot

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—The stock market spent much of its time today demonstrating its ability to skid around sharp turns without piling up in the ditch.

Cotton reflected the government's lower crop figures of Monday with another moderate upturn. Grains held to a restricted groove. Bonds generally were no more than steady. Leading foreign exchanges were a bit better in terms of the dollar.

There was a heavy turnover in the low-priced Packard and Reo Motor shares at small advances. Hudson and Nash also got up a point or so, but Chrysler and General Motors were only about even. Owens-Illinois recovered some 4 points of its yesterday's slump and Union Carbide and Briggs Mfg. gained 2 each.

Murray Mfg. and Timken Roller bearing were in demand. Liggett & Myers "B", Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, National Cash Register and Burroughs Adding were slightly improved. A number of equities edged into new high territory for 1935.

Columbian Carbon and Western Union yielded a point, while American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, U. S. Steel, and Northern Pacific were easier. Many issues were unchanged.

Dr. Mandell's Stamp Exhibit Wins Prize

Despite the rain, yesterday proved a red letter day for stamp collectors in the Hudson Valley. The stamp exhibition held by the Colonial City Stamp Club at the Hotel Stuyvesant attracted a large attendance.

The show was judged by W. L. L. Pelz of Albany, B. J. Gasser of Poughkeepsie and Mr. Cohen of the Newburgh News. First prize was awarded to Dr. Harold Mandell for his frame of early U. S. Commemorative and the second award went to the Rev. Wilbur F. Stone, who exhibited a frame of Newfoundland stamps. Although there were no other prizes awarded the judges felt that honorable mention should be given to the frames exhibited by Oscar Hillie, Arthur C. Tones and Sidney K. Clapp. A popular vote was taken and the visitors also awarded first place to Dr. Mandell.

The exhibition hall was pleasingly decorated with posters which were drawn with postage stamps and loaned by a Rasehke. The club was honored by the presence of Wendover Neefus, who is an authority of United States stamps. Mr. Neefus gave a very interesting talk on the older United States stamps, the history of stamp collecting and some sound advice to present day collectors.

The Cubs have lit the fuse and who knows but that they will rocket right out through the roof, into the blue heaven of the world series?

Most of the baseball seers who forgot Charley Grimm and his boys in their early season calculations, are making ready to take to the storm cellars. In fourth place, nine games behind the Giants, on July 6, the Cubs today are two games ahead of the ball team that busted and only one game behind the leading Cardinals.

The Cubs won their current winning streak up to six straight games yesterday, defeating the Boston Braves 5-1 and 2-1 as the world champions were dropping one to the Phillies.

Tex Carleton allowed only four hits in the first game and Larry Franch came back to take a decision from Fred Frankhouse in a mound duel in the nightcap. They ran the Braves' losing streak to nine straight.

Carleton fanned eight, walked none and allowed only two runners to get past first base. One of them was Elbert Fletcher, a rookie, who hit for the circuit.

After a pass and three singles scored the Cubs' two runs in the first inning of the second game. Frankhouse allowed but three Chicagoans to get on base.

Manager Frankie Frisch had a hitless birthday and he probably would have swapped all the candles on his cake for a reversal of that 4-3 defeat the Phillies hung on his team.

Philadelphia hopped on Phil Collins for three runs in the fifth inning and scored the deciding tally off Ed Heusser in the eighth. Curt Davis pitched seven-hit ball.

Before the game the house gang went a little sissy, presenting Frisch with a bouquet of flowers and then singing a birthday song as Dizzy Dean tossed aside the bat for the baton.

The Detroit Tigers retained their 8 1/2-game lead in the American League, coming from behind to down the Washington Senators 5 to 4.

Rain and darkness limited the game to seven innings.

The Yankees defeated Cleveland 5 to 3. Jack Saltzgaver connected with four hits for a perfect day at bat. He drove in three runs, one with a double and two with a homer.

The St. Louis Browns, fresh from the cellar themselves, had no compassion for the team that replaced them there. The Athletics went down 5-1 before the pitching of Earl Caldwell, righthander from San Antonio in the Texas League.

Two Important Games Of Softball Tonight

Two softball games, on the outcome of which the championship in the softball leagues depends, will be played tonight, rain having caused their postponement from Monday night. They are the games between the Colonials and the French Fly Works and the Apple Knockers vs. A. D. Rose team. The first will be played at the Athletic Field, starting at 6:35 and the second will be played at the Fair Grounds.

Bowlers Will Meet Tonight to Organize

The second meeting for the organization of the Silver Palace Bowling League will be held tonight at the Emerald Recreation. It is planned to run the league with 12 teams. Nine teams were represented at the first meeting. Organizations interested in entering teams are requested to send representatives to the meeting tonight, which starts at 7:30.

Rain Saved Budge From Bad Trimming In National Singles

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP).—Bilby Grant was back in his accustomed role of the "giant killer" of American tennis today.

For weeks the sports pages carried columns about the Wimbledon achievements of Donald Budge, the California youngster whose red hair flashes like a fireman's helmet. Budge's victories over Bunny Austin and Baron Gottfried Von Cramm earned him a rating among the five leading players of the world.

Ditzy read the papers—that's one of his chief diversions when he isn't wielding a racket. To him, Budge was just another tennis player though a sort of special one because he took a trimming from him last year when Grant was the favorite. Too, Budge had beaten him at Newport this year.

They squared off across the net yesterday in a quarter-final match of the 54th men's national singles championship. This time Budge was the red-hot favorite. He was the one American player conceded a chance to dethrone Fred Perry of England.

A Darling in Distress

Budge came back from England with the sobriquet, "The New Darling of Wimbledon." Against Grant he was a darling in distress saved only by a drenching downpour of rain which interrupted the contest at the time Grant was leading 6-4, 6-4, 2-1.

After the first three games Budge's spirit appeared to be broken. Grant handled his famous cannon-ball service with impressive ease. On the other hand Budge found Budge's service a little hard to handle and stood with his mouth wide open as Grant served an ace for the final point of the first set.

Budge seldom could get set to slam around thunderbolt returns and had to content himself with keeping the ball in play and trying to place it out of the reach of his small adversary. But Grant was virtually "all over the lot."

They are scheduled to resume their match at 2 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) today.

Sets Golfing Pace

Navy's head coach, Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton (center), 23-year-old aviator, may introduce new overhead bombardments this season with the Moby squad which he says must be rebuilt from stem to stern if it is to duplicate the success the service school enjoyed last fall, including a 3-0 conquest of Army. Annapolis (AP)—It won't be surprising if the Naval Academy's football warriors take to the air in an effort to win games this fall.

They will just be taking a cue from their coaches. Topped by 23-year-old Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton, the head-man, there are quite a few Navy aviators on the coaching staff—even more than last season when the sailors uncorked some spectacular exhibitions of open football.

Among Hamilton's assistants on the various squads are Lieutenants J. W. Rinn, H. H. Caldwell, A. S. Rinn, Paul Moret and C. W. Hughes. All these fellows wear the cold wings of the air service.

And if the Navy aviators start "submarining" an opposing line, that will come natural too, for there are several veterans of under-sea service among the experts. They include Lieutenant-Commander John H. Brown, director of football, and Lieutenants John H. Cross and W. G. Chappel, assistant coaches.

Building New Team

Take it from Head Coach Hamilton, the sailors are going to need all the "bombing," "submarining" and other deadly tactics they can muster to come through in style this season.

"We must build an almost entirely new team," he asserted, referring to the fact that only four veterans are back this year from the crack 1934 eleven. While he passed out the blue stars with a convincing grin, he had this to say:

"Our prospects are rather dark."

Gehrig Gets Going

—By Pap

Apparently Lou Gehrig is going to borrow a page from the St. Louis Cardinals' book and depend on a last-minute surge to again win the slugging and batting honors of the American League. Until the Yankees' final western swing Gehrig showed no signs of shaking off the slump that plagued him since the season opened.

In trying to place the blame for the big first baseman's failure to set the league afire with his bat and to carry on where his pal, Babe Ruth, left off, some pointed to the barnstorming jaunt in the Far East; others suggested that he needed his bell cow, Babe Ruth, to show him the way, while many were satisfied that it was simply a case of "over-baseballing," due to Lou's effort to prolong his consecutive games streak beyond the reach of future generations of big leaguers.

Gehrig himself held with none of these explanations; he just stuck to his job of doing the very best he could and hoped he would emerge from his slump in short order just as he had done on other occasions.

In the meantime a new pretender to his slugging throne sprang up in the person of Hank Greenberg. Greenberg had a merry old time setting the pace in home runs, runs batted in, runs scored, doubles, and in staying right up with the leaders for the individual batting championship.

Larrupin' Lou Again.

For the first time this season, on the final sweep around the loop, Gehrig resembled the Larruping Lou of past seasons. He hit .428 batting in 2-8 runs, and brought his home-run total up to 27 with eight round trips in the last eight days. That sudden spurge with the stick placed him right up within striking distance of the batting leaders.

The opposing pitchers treated Gehrig with the respect he commanded in the past, for he was passed no less than 26 times, five of the free tickets coming in a single game to equal the American league record.

They Fear Pepper.

There is no chance of Gehrig overtaking the Tigers' star as far as runs batted in goes, but he now occupies the position of runner-up in that department. He has already stepped out in front in the runs scored column.

Pepper Martin has not been making any threatening gestures as far as winning the National League batting crown is concerned, but there isn't a player in the senior circuit who is more genuinely feared by the opposing pitchers. It is not that Pepper is such a dangerous man at the plate, there are others who are outbitting him by 80 points, but the fact that he manages to get on base too often and then proceeds to "get in the hair" of the man on the mound. The Wild Horse of the Otago is again rampant on the basepaths and manages to annoy the pitchers no end. He just seems to get under their skin. There isn't a pitcher in the National league who would hesitate to name Pepper as the last man they want to see out there prancing around a bag. They never know exactly what he is going to pull. That same uneasiness is reflected in the work of the infielders. Martin worries 'em all to death and thoroughly enjoys doing it.

Little Continues March Toward the National Golf Crown

Cleveland, Sept. 10 (AP)—Bill Little of Chicago, an undertaker in white, today undertook the big job of burying the national amateur golf championship hopes of Lawson Little—a task that 24 other men in England and America have failed to accomplish during the last two years.

One of Chicago's leading amateurs, Lain, a tall blonde with a fair for white toggery, challenged the march of the human siege gun from San Francisco in the second round, but his hope of success in his venture was rather gloomy.

Little was believed to have been shot down and buried in his first 18 hole start over the soggy clay turf terrain of the Cleveland Country Club yesterday, but he proved to be a lively "corpse" that could rise again and still win.

Three down through five holes against Rufus King, 19-year-old travel shooter from Wichita Falls, Tex., Little conclusively proved his class and became a greater favorite than ever over his field by coming back to crush his youthful opponent, 2 and 1.

His Hardest Fight Yet

It was the hardest fight he has had to wage since he started out on his great march—a march that has won him the British amateur title twice in succession and the American amateur once—but he had the fight and the weapons to repel the attack of the "kid," who dazzled him by scoring four birdies in succession over the first five holes.

It took a 20-foot putt for Little to stop him on the sixth, but he topped his "kid" challenger so completely that he squared the match on the ninth hole, went ahead with a birdie from shot and a beautiful explosion on the 588-yard 12th and never was headed thereafter.

Except for the defeat of Francis Ouimet, twice champion, who was eliminated by Lord Foder, 24-year-old cafeteria worker of Washington, D. C., the big field went through 25 opening matches yesterday, most of them in a driving rain, without a dinner upset. Ouimet was beaten in his first round match for the second consecutive year, 2 and 1, his usually straight woods getting him into trouble from start to finish and finally beating him after a dinner-back.

Forty-nine players drew first round holes and six others won by default, sending 124 into the second 18-hole round today.

Stout C. H. Brown—Freddie Chernoweth, 13 1/2, Chicago, outpointed Gus Brown, 13 1/2, Manhattan, Kan., (10).

TIPS ON CONTRACT

By TOM O'NEIL

Q How should the following hands be bid?

DEALER	PARTNER
♠ A A 6 3 3	♠ 9 3 2
♥ K 8 7 5	♥ A
♦ J 6 4	♦ A K Q 7 5
♣ 8 5	♣ A K 2

I bid a heart, partner said three diamonds, I said three hearts, partner went to seven no trump. He made it, of course, but it strikes me he was assuming a lot. He reasoned I must have the ace of spades for anything but a psychic opening. The king of spades was led.

—He was right in deducing your possession of the ace but he took a bit of a chance on ability to get into your hand and also on your possession of the K-Q-J of hearts. Supposing you had seven hearts to the Q-J-10 and the ace-king of spades, you would have a sound opening bid of a heart. Obviously the key to success of the grand slam was your possession of the jack of diamonds as well as the K-Q-J of hearts. Over your three hearts, if South had bid four diamonds, you could have shown diamond support by an offer of five diamonds and then he could have bid his grand slam.

Q—I opened with one diamond and after a pass second hand, partner offered a heart. Fourth hand bid a spade, I said two hearts, second hand passed, partner went to four hearts and second hand doubled. Should I have redoubled? The hands were:

Myself Dealer.	Partner.
S-A 4	S-J 10 2
H-K 8 6 3	H-K J 10 9 4
D-K Q J 7 6 2	D-None
C-J	C-A Q 8 5 3

A—I would pass. Your opening bid was not so strong. Evidently the double was a chance-taking thing based on possession of the three or four hearts to the ace, the king of clubs and possibly the king of spades. The contract should be made with loss of a diamond. Having overbid a bit, you should not have redoubled. Also, a redouble possibly would have driven the opponents to sacrifice at four spades, which might not have cost them much.

Q—Partner opened the bidding with one no trump. Second hand passed? What should I have bid? I held:

S-A 2
H-7 6 4
D-8 7 5
C-A K 5 4 3

A—Three no trump. The hand lacks intermediates to warrant a force of three diamonds. Your partner has some diamonds. Undoubtedly three or four tricks will be won in that suit. A no trump raise will leave the enemy in dark what to lead. If four partner is exceptionally strong he can make another bid over three no trump. Two diamonds would be too weak a response.

Q—First hand bid a heart; second hand, my partner, went one a trump. Third hand passed. What should I have done? I held:

S-Q 8 6 4
D-10 8 3
C-J 6 4

A—Bid two spades. If partner has no trump is sound he will be glad to know you have five cards in the other major. There may be the danger in his passing that he has no hearts stopped but has a long diamond or club suit. If he does any further bidding you should pass unless forced.

Planning To Hold Diphtheria Clinics

Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, said this morning that he was planning to hold a series of diphtheria immunizing clinics throughout the city in addition to the regular Monday afternoon clinics.
Since the work of immunizing children was first taken up in this city some years ago there has been a vast improvement in the methods. During the first years toxin-antitoxin was used which required three injections being made in the arm of the patient at the intervals of one week between each injection. Later a more efficient serum was discovered which required but two injections. The serum now being used requires but one injection.
By the use of this latest serum considerable time is saved by its being necessary to make but one injection of the serum.

Today's Cable Briefs By Associated Press

Brest, France—Lydia Oswald, 28, German beauty who found that love and espionage do not mix, was summoned before a naval court today for secret trial as a spy. The blonde fraulien is charged with playing siren to two French navigators in an attempt to pry naval defense secrets out of them. Her plan miscarried, she confessed, when she fell in love with Lieutenant Jean De Forceville, one of her selected dupes, and agreed to marry him.

Geneva—Proposals to secure better distribution of foodstuffs throughout the world will come before the present assembly of the League of Nations, at the instance of the Australian delegation. The idea is that an outlet for excess farm products may be found in countries where large sections of the population are suffering at present from malnutrition.

Neuva Rosita, Coahuila, Mexico—Inhabitants of this area abandoned their homes today and fled to higher ground as the waters of the Alamos river rose approximately 20 feet. Property damage was heavy, but no deaths were reported.
London—The Reuters (British) correspondent at Athens today reported that the Greek government was understood to be inquiring at Rome concerning an Italian gunboat having moored in Greek waters without permission.

Philip Schantz Car Taken to New Jersey

Highland, Sept. 10—The Chevrolet sport coupe of Philip T. Schantz was taken from his yard after 3 o'clock Sunday morning by someone who apparently wanted to get farther south. It was about 8 o'clock when Mr. Schantz notified Sergeant John Lockhart, who immediately telephoned the theft. It was later picked up at Verona, N. J., where it had been abandoned when the gas gave out. The fishing tackle, magnetic needle and other objects in the car had not been disturbed.

"Cigarette Halt"—that's what men on the march call it when they stop for rest and a cigarette.
Cigarette Halt. Pass around the Chesterfields. It's a corking good cigarette. They have taste, yes, plenty of it, but not strong.
Chesterfields are mild, but they are not insipid or flat.
